Weather draws bargain hunters

The second of four Old Fashioned Bargain Days dawned bright and cool Thursday, ideal for shopping, and many bargain hunters made the best of it.

Before noon, the stores and sidewalks in the central business district were as busy as on the opening day, and getting busier. Parking spaces on the streets were few and far between and the off-street parking lots were practically filled.

ALTHOUGH bargain buys were the principal magnets for the shoppers, many lined the streets for the bike parade and gathered on Main Street for the judging.

One of the big features of the four-day event was the Farmer's Market, with nothing but homegrown and homemade items. It stretched along the sidewalk and Courthouse lawn wall almost from Court Street to Market Street. The market opened at 11 a.m. for the day-long operations. There were 16 tables of plants, produce and other assorted items.

As for Old Fashioned Bargain Days, merchants in the central business district were happy. The consensus was that business was very good and, with the sidewalk sales scheduled to be held Friday and Saturday, they expressed confidence that it will get better.

And as for the customers, a sampling of opinion emphasized the bargains they have been finding; armloads of packages were additional evidence that the bargain hunters were finding what they were looking for. One woman said "this is a chance to get a lot of things I have

Overwhelming House vote expected on impeachment

WASHINGTON (AP)—With House debate on the impeachment question due to start in two weeks, some leading congressmen representing both parties and various political philosophies say President Nixon's chances are poor.

Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, a leading House conservative who supports impeachment, said Wednesday he expects the House to vote to impeach Nixon by nearly a 3-1 margin.

House Republican Whip Leslie Arends, generally considered the Republican congressional leader closest to Nixon, said of Nixon's chances of avoiding impeachment: "I would not tell him it looks good."

House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill predicted more than 75 per cent of the House members will vote to impeach the President.

O'Neill said no firm counts have been taken but said his discussions with members indicate no more than 38 of the 248 House Democrats and fewer than 80 of the 187 Republicans will support the President on impeachment.

Rep. Joe D. Waggoner, D-La., a strong Nixon supporter, thinks even fewer than 38 Democrats will vote against impeachment, O'Neill said.

And the leader of the unsuccessful Nixon defense in the House Judiciary Committee, Rep. Charles Wiggins, R-Calif., said, "At the moment, I would have to say the odds are that the House would pass them (the articles of impeachment)."

The statements came as the House prepared for debate on the three impeachment articles approved by the Judiciary Committee.

A number of procedural matters have to be settled, such as the length of time for debate, whether the proceedings in the House chamber will be televised and whether the committee's articles will be open for amendment.

Meanwhile, there were these related developments:

—O'Neill, a close friend of Vice President Gerald R. Ford, said Ford is well aware of the possibility that Nixon will be removed from office. That step would require a two-thirds vote in the Senate after a majority vote in the House to impeach the President.

—White House aide Patrick J. Buchanan said the White House was keeping open the option of essentially giving up a fight in the House in order to expedite Senate action. However, a number of House members said this would amount to a cop-out.

—Two senators on a panel studying impeachment rules said they oppose a strict definition of what would be required to convict Nixon in a Senate trial. Sens. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and James Allen, D-Ala., said each senator would make his own judgments by his own standards.

—Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., said Nixon should not use public money for his own defense in a Senate impeachment trial. Montoya, chairman of a Senate subcommittee reviewing White House budgets, said, "I would not want the President to use one nickel of the money for the White House in this bill for his own defense."

—Nixon's Watergate attorney, James D. St. Clair, disclosed that more than five minutes are missing from White House tapes of a Watergate conversation between the President and two close advisers.

House Speaker Carl Albert met with Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., to discuss the procedural questions, but no decisions were reported. Rodino said he wanted to talk matters over with other committee members.

The 10 Republican members who voted against impeachment held a meeting of their own to plan defense moves, and later met with House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes.

Rhodes, who says he remains undecided how to vote on impeachment, is meeting regularly with groups of Republicans to find out where they stand.

Wiggins said the anti-impeachment forces are trying to assure that whatever debate procedures are adopted will provide a fair opportunity for their side to be heard.

They also are working on a minority report that will accompany the committee's report in support of the three articles of impeachment, which charge Nixon with obstruction of justice, abuse of his powers and defiance of committee subpoenas.

In preparation for the debate, both sides on the committee are assigning members to study specific aspects of the case, with the outnumbered Wiggins group turning to non-committee members for help.

As soon as the report is ready, which (Please turn to page 2)

LBJ-milk fund story false, ex-aide says

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a memorandum which he has now repudiated, Lyndon B. Johnson's former appointments secretary claimed he got a $40,000-a-year job from the milk producers by talking the late president into a lame-duck decision on milk price supports.

The former aide, James R. Jones, now a Democratic congressman from Tulsa, Okla., said in the memo that he helped pressure the Agriculture Department into recommending the price support action, then talked Johnson into approving it.

Now Jones says there was no White House pressure and that Johnson was not involved. He said he fabricated the story in an attempt to keep the milk producers' job. However, a new management fired him as a public relations consultant in early 1972.

The memo was placed in the Senate Watergate committee's open files despite a request from Jones' lawyer to suppress it as inaccurate.

It refers to an announcement by then-Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman on Dec. 26, 1968, that continued the level of milk price supports at $4.28 per hundredweight through the first year of the Nixon administration. Freeman made the announcement less than a month before the new Republican administration took office, months before the normal annual decision on price supports.

Jones wrote the memo to George Mehren, the new general manager of Associated Milk Producers, Inc., on Jan. 18, 1972. Mehren had just taken over the co-op and had fired Jones and many other consultants in a general economy move.

Jones protested, and said he had been given the $40,000-a-year retainer for five years by Mehren's predecessors, Harold Nelson and David Parr.

He said that after Nixon was elected, Nelson and Parr "were anxious to get President Johnson to approve price supports at $4.28. They offered me a retainer with AMPI. I declined to talk about it and said I didn't want to consider any offers until we were nearly out of office."

"... We got the Agriculture Department (over some pretty stiff feet dragging) to send the price support recommendation over around Dec. 18. The President refused to sign it. Finally, after two conversations with him (by me) he did sign." Then Jones nailed down the job, the memo said.

In an interview, Jones said the whole story was a fabrication. "I puffed it," he said. "I'm not proud of it, but that's what I did." He denied that he had talked to Johnson about price supports, and denied that he pressured the Agriculture Department into making the early announcement.

Freeman was unavailable for comment. But Jones' story is backed up by John A. Schnitker, then under secretary of agriculture.

Schnitker, in an interview, said that Freeman decided to announce price supports early to keep the incoming Nixon administration from lowering them. He said he knew of no pressure from the White House and that so far as he knows, Johnson wasn't involved.

Also, Jones had dropped the LBJ story eight days after he wrote the memo. In a letter to Mehren dated Jan. 26, 1972, he said he had just recovered from a "devastating bout with the flu." He said he hadn't meant for the earlier memo to be sent.

Midwestern governors seek end to long daylight time

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN. (AP) — Midwest governors have adopted a resolution urging that the United States drop year-round daylight savings time (DST) and return to the old system of advancing the clock only from April to October.

The governors presented their plea to Federal Energy Administrator John Sawhill Wednesday while he was in Minneapolis to address the Midwest Governors' Conference.

However, Sawhill defended the year-round plan, saying it has resulted in an energy saving of one-half of one per cent, which he called "significant."

"Perhaps I don't fully understand the hardships... It's one of the tough decisions that will have to be made," Sawhill said.

Sawhill also told the governors they should pave the way for electric companies to charge higher rates to consumers. He said utility firms are in "disturbing financial trouble" and may not be able to build the nuclear generating plants needed to lessen U. S. dependence on foreign oil.

Sawhill said power companies have 100 nuclear plants on the drawing boards, but said utilities are failing to attract investors because of low returns.

"It's up to the states to streamline the regulatory process, and to expedite rate decisions so that utilities can quickly meet rising costs," he said.

The energy administrator said utility firms are now netting 11 or 12 per cent, and should be allowed to earn between 14 and 16 per cent.

"There's no question in my mind that the era of low cost energy is over," said Sawhill, adding that the long-range trend for all energy prices is upward.

Coffee Break...

EVERYBODY'S HAPPY NOW...

"Spicky," that fluffy little cream colored puppy of uncertain ancestry who won the hearts of everyone in the Record-Herald office and shop Monday afternoon, is back home again after his two-day roving adventure. He slipped into the R-H office unnoticed about noon. He romped through the office and shop making friends with everyone. He was so loveable, everyone wanted to adopt him. But, since he was wearing a "flea collar," it was obvious the 8-month-old puppy was a family pet. So Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Marchant, who are interested in humane society objectives, were called. They came and took Spicky to their home until the owners could be located. Monday evening, Mrs. Lawrence Redman, 822 Sycamore St., was certain it was Spicky who had gone into the R-H office and then was taken to the Marchant home as soon as she read the piece in Coffee Break. So she and her 5-year-old son, Travis, hurried to make certain. Mrs. Marchant said "there was no doubt about it. Spicky ran to them yipping happily as they cuddled him and he licked their faces. Both Mrs. Redman and Travis started to cry with joy. Mrs. Marchant said several other people wanted to take Spicky as soon as they saw him. She added "and we wanted to keep him, too." Spicky disappeared from his home Saturday evening while the family was away.

Phone union gives hefty vote to strike approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — Telephone workers have given union leaders overwhelming approval to call a nationwide strike against the Bell System.

No date was set but indications are that a strike could come as early as Monday if negotiators fail to reach agreement on new contracts for 750,000 workers.

The Communications Workers of America called a news conference for 2 p.m. EDT today to announce official results of the strike authorization vote completed at midnight Wednesday.

In event of a strike, Bell said it expects to maintain service with management personnel. Most of the nation's telephone system is automated and a walkout would have little effect on daily service.

"We will continue to provide service with as little interruption as possible," said a spokesman for the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co. in Atlanta.

A survey by The Associated Press of major locals around the country showed rank-and-file workers voted lopsidedly in favor of a strike.

An official of San Francisco Local 9410 said voting in Northern California ran better than 80 per cent to authorize a walkout. In New York City, Local 1101 approved a strike, 7,760 to 418. Miami Local 3107 voted by a margin of 85 per cent for a strike and a spokesman said members were ready to man the picket lines.

Bell ordered its top negotiators back to Washington in preparation for weekend bargaining sessions and sources indicated the company was likely to offer a new proposal before a scheduled Sunday meeting of the CWA's executive council. The council has authority to set a strike date.

Contracts covering Bell employees expired July 17 and were extended on a daily basis with 48 hours notice required for termination.

Union leaders called for the strike vote July 18 after rejecting a company proposal for a three-year contract providing first-year wage hikes ranging from 6.5 to 10 per cent. Increases of 3.3 per cent were offered in the second and third year of the contract in addition to raises tied to increases in the cost of living.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. George (Ruth) Brown Jr., of Vandalia, and three sisters, Mrs. Alice Huffman, of Mt. Gilead, Mrs. Jeanne Weaver, of Florida, and Mrs. Joyce Cameron, of Galion.

Crash victim's rites set Friday in Dayton

DAYTON — Funeral services for Mrs. Iris L. Gist, 67, of 142 Basswood Ave., Dayton, who died Tuesday in Mount Carmel Hospital, Columbus, of injuries received in a July 25 traffic mishap near Washington C.H., will be held at 11 a.m. Friday in the Schlientz and Moore Funeral Home, Dayton.

Mrs. Gist suffered massive head injuries in a one-car accident on U.S. 35 at the Eymann Road intersection, southeast of Washington C.H., near the Ross County line.

Ohio Highway Patrolman Larry Hopkins said Mrs. Gist traveled off the right side of U.S. 35 and collided with a utility pole. The cause of the accident was not determined, but it is believed Mrs. Gist suffered a heart attack while traveling west on U.S. 35. Ptl. Hopkins said there were no signs of skid marks which would have indicated an attempt on the woman's part to prevent the collision with the utility pole.

Ohio consumers get little relief

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Despite reported easing of meat prices in an attempt by supermarkets to cut down oversupplies, the average Ohio food shopper got little overall relief last month.

An Associated Press monthly survey of a dozen cities showed that a marketbasket of 14 selected items cost 5.3 per cent more than a month ago with meat and sugar leading the increase.

A pound of center cut pork chops sold on the average for $1.35 a month ago in a similar survey. Today the average price had reached $1.54 a pound.

A month ago a pound of ground chuck averaged $1.13. Today's average was $1.19 a pound.

This trend may not hold tomorrow. It might not have held last week. C. William Swank, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, has accused retail grocers of "playing games with each other and the public."

"Our price checkers have found a wide variation in prices between stores and within the same stores from week to week," he said.

The difference in price from city to city has often been notable. For two months in Athens the price of center cut pork chops has held firm at 99 cents.

At Portsmouth, just 83 miles away as the butcher's truck must travel, the same cut of meat ran $1.89 a pound, up from $1.49 a month back.

At Lima the price was $1.99 a pound, up 40 cents from a month ago.

Sugar continued its surge upward to an average price in the 12 surveyed cities of $1.63 for five pounds. That was 103 per cent higher than nine months ago when the average was 80 cents for five pounds of granulated sugar.

Peak price was $1.79 in Columbus with Athens, Portsmouth and Van Wert reporting $1.75.

The marketbasket included pork chops, ground chuck, allbeef frankfurters, eggs, butter, cookies, orange juice, paper towels, peanut butter, detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk and sugar.

The cost on the average of the entire marketbasket jumped to $11.23 this month, compared with $10.66 last month.

In all but two of the cities checked prices were up. In Lima, which fell exactly on the average, the food shopper saved 4 per cent over a month ago when the entire marketbasket cost $11.70. And Conneaut reported a 2.5 per cent decrease, down to $10.73 from $11.00.

But, in Van Wert costs were up 19.6 per cent, from $9.65 last month to $11.55 this month, and the increase ran 11.8 per cent in Cincinnati and Dayton and 14.6 per cent in Portsmouth, most expensive city at $12.51.

Massillon quoted the lowest cost at $10.09.

Cities surveyed included Akron, Athens, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Conneaut, Dayton, Lima, Massillon, Portsmouth, Van Wert and Youngstown.

Deaths, Funerals

Mrs. Joseph Martin

Pallbearers for the burial in the Washington Cemetery were Randy LeMaster, Vernon West, Rodger Miller, Steve LeMaster, Robert Long and Bill Barrett.

Co-Op chief pleads guilty to conspiracy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harold S. Nelson, former boss of a milk producers' co-op, has pleaded guilty to a conspiracy to bribe John B. Connally and to pay more than $300,000 in illegal political donations.

Nelson admitted on Wednesday that he authorized a payment of $10,000 intended for Connally, a former Texas governor and later Treasury secretary during President Nixon's first term.

Connally, who was indicted on Monday for accepting the $10,000, has said he is innocent and that he will fight the charge.

Nelson, 56, of San Antonio, Tex., pleaded guilty before U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. to charges drawn up by Watergate prosecutors. He faces a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

Nelson admitted that as general manager of Associated Milk Producers Inc., the nation's largest dairy-farmer cooperative, he authorized payment of more than $300,000 to Democrats and Republicans in the elections of 1968, 1970 and 1972.

He also admitted that he had authorized the co-op's former lobbyist, Bob A. Lilly, to give $10,000 to lawyer Jake Jacobsen to pass on to Connally for the Cabinet officer's help in persuading President Nixon to raise federal milk price supports in March 1971. Jacobsen was indicted with Connally on a single bribery charge, and sources say he has agreed to plead guilty and to testify against Connally.

The corporate donations admitted by Nelson include:

—$63,500 to the Democratic National Committee during Hubert H. Humphrey's 1968 presidential campaign.

needed... at the bargain prices. I can get more for the same money."

The sidewalk sales Friday and Saturday will be held in an entirely different atmosphere. Merchandise of all shapes, sizes, colors and utility purpose will be displayed on the sidewalks throughout the central business district; it will make a panorama reminiscent of the "good old (pre-inflation) days."

Lending color to the scene will be the clerks, both on the sidewalks and inside the stores, attired in old fashioned costume. As an added incentive there will be a costume contest for employees at 4 p.m. and a customer costume contest at 4:30 p.m. Saturday on the Courthouse lawn. Awards of $15, $10 and $5 will be given for the top three in the judging in each contest.

The Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club's always popular ice cream social will be held on the Courthouse lawn starting at 4:30 p.m.

ONE OF the big attractions of the four-day event will be the antique car show on Main Street between Court and Temple streets. It is expected to attract antique and classic car hobbyists from throughout Ohio as well as from other states. The show will open officially at 9 a.m., although the first antique hobbyists are expected to park their cars much earlier.

Two other features are on the closing day — the AAUW Book Fair on the west side of Main Street, and the serving of barbecued beef sandwiches by members of the Washington C.H. Shrine Club all day in the vicinity of the Courthouse.

Results of Wednesday's bicycle parade were:

Best decorated — First, Shawn Arthur, 109 River Rd., (2) Julie and Ann Boswell, 501 Albin Ave. and (3) Steve Kingery, 605 W. Elm St., and Craig Maddux, 558 Albin Ave.

Most original decorated — First Jeff Lewis, 513 Albin Ave., (2) Jerry Pavey, Rt. 2, and (3) Katrina Spence, 431 Fifth St.

SURRENDERING THE TAPES — White House lawyer James St. Clair walks with assistant, right as assistant carries metal suitcase containing subpoenaed Watergate tapes. Tapes were turned over to Judge John Sirica.

Turks seize more towns on Cyprus despite truce

By The Associated Press
Observation flights to map the cease-fire lines on Cyprus were discontinued today after the U.N. Security Council's failure to approve the Geneva accord because of a Soviet veto.

But U.N. sources on the Mediterranean island expressed hope the flights would be resumed after the council met again later in the day to consider the Cyprus situation anew.

Turkish troops on Cyprus have seized two more towns in violation of the new cease-fire agreement, but one of the Turkish invasion commanders said he still expected the accord to take hold.

Greek Cypriot newspapers that appeared for the first time in two weeks predicted an imminent reshuffle of the cabinet of acting Cyprus President Glafcos Clerides.

The cabinet was inherited by Clerides, the constitutional successor of deposed President Makarios, when he took over the presidency from Nicos Sampson, the ex-guerrilla gunman who acted as president for five days after the bloody coup of July 15.

The cabinet was composed entirely of extreme right-wing supporters of the anti-Makarios underground that favored union with Greece.

The junta has been overthrown in Greece as a result of Makarios' ouster and the Turkish invasion of Cyprus July 20.

In Athens, government sources said Greece's new civilian government is going to reinstate the 1952 constitution, but a referendum will be held to decide whether the country should again become a monarchy.

They said in the interim the

A fair weather high pressure system will move through Ohio today and bring abundant sunshine to most of the state, and cause temperatures to climb into the upper 70s and the mid 80s.

Clouds will begin increasing in the western counties during the day as a disturbance moves out of the Great Plains and towards Ohio. Showers and thundershowers will possibly move into western Ohio early Friday and cover most of the state by Friday evening.

Afternoon temperatures are to continue warm with readings in the upper 70s and the mid 80s.

A chance of showers and thundershowers Saturday, ending Sunday. Fair Monday. Highs in the upper 70s and low 80s. Lows in the 60s.

Impeachment

is expected to be next Wednesday. Rodino will go before the Rules Committee and request a resolution setting a time limit on debate and defining what kind of amendments, if any, will be in order.

Most committee Democrats would like to prevent amendments to the three articles that have been approved, limiting members to motions to strike whole articles or sections of them, or to proposing additional articles.

The approach favored by the anti-impeachment Republicans is just the opposite. They would like any further articles barred and the existing ones open for amendment.

Also awaiting action by the Rules Committee is a resolution that would permit the House debate to be televised. Its approval is considered certain.

Workman's Comp law already under review

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Legislators apparently must wait until next year in their attempt to exempt Ohio employers of part-time help such as lawn boys and baby sitters from workmen's compensation coverage. They failed to get their bill out of the recent one-day legislative session on supplemental appropriations. Leaders said there would not be another full session this year.

"We won't come back unless something comes up that we can't see now," said Rep. Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, House Speaker pro tem. Sen. Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma, and Sen. Howard C. Cook, R-1 Toledo, sought repeal at the July 23 session of the requirement for Ohioans who pay a casual worker as much as $50 over a three-month period to buy workmen's compensation coverage.

Mottl introduced earlier the bill to change provisions of the 1973 workmen's compensation law, which became effective July 1. Mottl proposed that an employer would not have to cover his hired worker unless he paid him as much as $250 over a three-month period.

"That would exempt the boy who cuts your grass or the occasional baby sitter," said Mottl, who was besieged with complaints in his district after about 100,000 Ohioans discovered they had to fork over $10 to the state for registration.

Another advocate of change was Anthony Stringer, administrator of the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation, who said the elderly, young married couples and others of moderate income were not given full consideration during legislative debate on the 1973 law.

"I think we made a mistake with that law," Stringer said.

Stringer acknowledged that it might be unusual to be re-examining the law so soon after it went into effect.

"I don't want to appear dumb, but, after all government is not or should not be run in a vacuum," he said. "A lot of the time you don't really feel the effects of a new law until you start to administer it."

Stringer said the $50 limit came nationally. "It originally was among the recommendations from the Nixon commission which made a national study of workmen's compensation laws," he said.

The Nixon commission, he said, made 19 recommendations with a suggestion to the President that if the states did not comply with all or most of them by 1975 that the federal government take over the workmen's insurance program.

"All the states were under pressure," said Stringer. "Sen. (Jacob) Javits, R-N.Y., didn't wait until 1975. He introduced a bill this year and hearings already have been completed on it."

Although the General Assembly passed the law in 1973, the part that extended coverage to domestic help didn't become effective until July 1 this year.

The state gave Stringer's office $87,000 to publicize the change, the educational program didn't really get into swing until about three months ago. The campaign included pamphlets and posters distributed by the 16 regional offices of the bureau along with broadcast interviews and a considerable effort by Ohio's newspapers to make the provisions of the law known to the public.

Stringer rejected the idea that homeowners should be entirely let off from purchasing coverage for their employees along with the argument that homeowners who carry liability insurance already give employees the same protection — in some cases for nothing.

"That just isn't true," he said. He pointed out that an employee has to go into court and prove negligence before he can be paid for an on-the-job injury.

"No one is at fault under workmen's compensation," he said. "You get paid no matter who is at fault."

Richard F. Thompson, chief investment officer for the bureau, said premiums from home owners has only a negligible effect on bureau income. At $10 for each of 100,000 domestic employers the bureau would receive $1 million. The bureau has a $1.2 billion fund that pays about $225 million a year in claims and last year earned $71.8 million in interest and dividends.

Stringer said no estimate of the number of senior citizens or others on fixed incomes were caught in a bind by the new law.

"But, everywhere I have been someone has expressed concern about it," he said.

Bureau field offices reported the same reactions.

David Crowley, executive director of Ohio's new Commission on Aging, said his organization, now only seven months old, "still is in the process of collecting information."

Crowley said he was interested in seeing whether the law could have an effect on the availability of employment of the elderly, who may be seeking part-time domestic jobs.

If the law narrowed the number of prospective employers, he said, "you'd have a problem on the other end."

Julian Marcus of Columbus, who runs the Senior Citizen Placement Bureau of Franklin County, discounted that type problem.

"We get a few calls for people wanting someone to live in, or to mow the yard, but very few," he said. "Most senior citizens want to live in their own homes."

Marcus said he thought the law would not greatly harm those with fixed incomes. "It's $2 or $3 a month," he said.

"They can afford that. It's not enough to hurt them any more than they already are hurt."

As of Oct. 31, 1972, there were 20,828 officers and 1,984 civilians in the police roster in New York. Chicago was next with 13,125 officers and 1,286 civilians.

End of the Greek junta

Lovers of democracy cannot but rejoice that civilian government has been restored to power in Greece after seven years of military rule. Since the spring of 1967 the Greeks have heard many promises about uncontrolled elections and the return of representative government, but the junta has cynically clung to power.

The volatile situation on the island of Cyprus served as the catalyst to force out the junta in Athens. At this stage the underlying reasons for this remain unclear. The outcome is nonetheless welcome - all the more so because the new government in Athens headed by Constantine Caramanlis after many years of exile has promptly declared its support for Archbishop Makarios on Cyprus.

Makarios is not without fault; that is not the point. But compared with a one-time thug such as Nikos Sampson, who took over at the point of a gun, he is a jewel. Now that Sampson has perforce yielded to Glafkos Clerides, the Makarios regime may soon be restored. In our view that offers the best hope for stability on the island so torn by conflicting Greek and Turkish loyalties.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

Cypriot chess game

Analyzing the situation on Cyprus is almost as depressing as exploring the variables in Northern Ireland. If one could possibly conceive of four-dimensional chess, the analogy would be applicable to both locales. To begin with, you have the existence of hostile tribes (African nations have no monopoly on tribalism) who have lived in uneasy equilibrium for centuries. The percentage of Turks in Cyprus is smaller (20 per cent) than the Catholic minority in Northern Ireland (roughly one-third), but this numerical disadvantage is more than compensated for by the irresponsible vigor with which Turkey defends their status. The Irish Republic, in contrast, has made every effort to cool the situation in the North as, of course, has Her Majesty's Government in London.

The historical background of Cypriot independence is interesting. It can be described briefly as an improvisation that developed a life of its own. Generations of Cypriot Greeks were solidly for "enosis" — union with Greece — but the Turks wouldn't stand for it. A nasty civil war began in 1954, with the poor British caught in the middle, and finally in 1959, a compromise was worked out providing guarantees for the Turkish minority in an independent Greek Cyprus. Archbishop Makarios — a strenuous advocate of "enosis," whom the British had tucked away on an island in the Indian Ocean — became President. At that time the Archbishop was closely aligned with Colonel George Grivas (the famed leader of the Greek terrorists who died last January), and the Turks, with considerable justification, believed that independence was just a way station on the road to union with Greece.

THIS SUSPICION was confirmed in 1963 when Makarios suggested some amendments to the Cyprus constitution which seemed to undermine the rights of the island's Turks. Shortly the two tribes were shooting at each other, and in 1964 the Turkish government launched a military feat to indicate its determination to protect its Cypriot compatriots. Even the irrepressible Krushchev got into the act, warning the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to keep out of the internal affairs of Cyprus or risk a threat to the "general peace." Off the issue went to the United Nations which established a peace-keeping force that is still there.

As of 1964, then, Makarios was still closely aligned with General Grivas and Greek Prime Minister Papandreu. In other words, it is fair to say that Cypriot independence was not at the top of the Archbishop-President's agenda. However, in 1967 an event occurred which threw all the chessmen back into the box: the Greek coup, which brought a right-wing military regime to power in Athens. This was bad news to the Greek Cypriots who had sponsored a generally left-wing policy (including nonalignment in the Cold War) and had a strong Communist party.

Cypriot independence immediately attained a new luster. "Enosis" with a Greece run by a center-left government was one thing; union with a military dictatorship was something else again. At this time Grivas denounced Makarios for a double-cross and initiated guerrilla activities against the Cypriot regime. But, curiously, the Greek junta turned out to be much more restrained on the Cyprus issue than its democratic predecessors. For one thing, it did not have to respond to Greek public opinion; also, it had substantial respect for the military who, through dummy governments, were running Turkey. White it is overstating the facts to say that the two sets of generals reached a modus vivendi on Cyprus, it was certainly true that they established a modus non vivendi. (In fact the Athens junta recalled Grivas from Cyprus and put him virtually under house arrest.)

Why the problem should explode in 1974 is hard to explain except in terms of accident. Makarios apparently had decided (wisely) to send home the Greek officers who trained the Cypriot National Guard, and when this decision leaked, the officers struck. Athens was obviously caught completely by surprise. Then the Turkish government, ironically a left-of-center coalition based on genuine elections, overreacted. Twice before the Turkish military had engaged in bluffs involving mobilizing troops and transports off Cyprus, but pulled them back. This time Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit — who unlike the Generals takes public opinion into consideration — pulled the trigger.

As of this writing everything is firmly in midair, but my hunch is that when the smoke clears Makarios will be back presiding over an independent Cyprus; the solution which will least divide all concerned.

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 2

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

If you've had difficulty in launching a cherished project because of opposition, you'll get a chance to prove a significant point after noon — and barriers will fall.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

Don't let your sympathies run away with you. There are some who would take advantage of your generosity.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

If a proposed plan or project is well-advised, try it, even though it is unique. It just could prove to be one of your more interesting challenges.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

Some restrictions where personal relationships are concerned. Don't try to force issues. Associates won't play along.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Opportunities in a new field will interest you considerably. Study well — if only to grasp as an avocation.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Judgments of the a.m. could not only be a bit "cloudy" but, if based on overoptimism, could have disappointing results. Your instincts can be trusted after 3 p.m., however.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Avoid overtaxing yourself — a tendency now. Temper your ambitions and desires with common sense.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

A good day for closing profitable deals or arriving at accords which will make them possible. Cut a few corners if you can.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Get important matters out of the way by noon, if possible. Certain planetary restrictions in the p.m. could bring about delays, unexpected interruptions.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Do not judge the actions of others lightly — or with suspicion. Study all factors carefully and you will arrive at more reliable conclusions.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

You can make unusual progress in many areas now. Get your mind clicking early, and in tune with present trends.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Aspects indicate the possibility of some deception in your area. Be alert and ready to counteract with firmness. Above all, avoid those who have deceived you before.

YOU BORN TODAY, like most Leoites, present an outward appearance of self-confidence and self-assuredness but, unlike most others born under your Sign, this often masks an inner feeling of timidity and insecurity. Try to curb this self-doubt for you have been endowed with so many fine characteristics and talents that, properly educated, of course, there are no heights which you cannot attain. Surest avenues of success: The stage, literature, science and the law. If attracted to business, manufacturing would be your best bet but, in such case, be sure to have some artistic outlet for contentment and fulfillment.

LCI project helps prisoners

LONDON, Ohio (AP) — It's called "Multi-Disciplinary Treatment, Remediation and Education," but it's just a game prison inmates play.

Hiding behind the cumbersome title is a pilot project at the London Correctional Institution designed to help inmates change their behavior patterns by developing better attitudes and values.

The project developed at the medium security facility last year got under way May 20.

Earl Stump, London psychologist, said the game goes like this:

An inmate calls a game and indicts a fellow inmate for some infraction of behavior. From 9 to 35 other inmates participate in trying to break down the indicted man's defenses and make him confront himself.

The rules permit anything short of physical abuse—lies, sneers, laughter or whatever attack might breach the man's defense. Tensions can become great and emotions high.

"We try to decompress before the game is over," said Stump. "You can see the men becoming exhausted and getting tired. When we sum up we try to point out we aren't attacking the individual, just his behavior."

"If a guy has been hurt, he's usually over that in two days. We've cleared up communications so well."

Stump said the project already has succeeded in making the 35 volunteers accept responsibility for their dormitory and behavior.

"In most systems when you are an inmate people tell you what to do and you have a perfect right on occasion to act irresponsibly. With the game you can't act irresponsibly. As in civilian life you are responsible for the rules that you make," he said.

The project is being tested on multiple offenders, convicts he said comprise a neglected group in rehabilitation efforts, Stump said.

Prison staffers also are working with transactional analysis, described as a "theory of personality which focuses upon the interactions among people and tries to obtain the clearest possible communication among their true feelings."

Ohio State University's Program for the Study of Crime and Delinquency is scheduled to evaluate the success of the London program.

"Ultimately we hope that the man coming out will be able to fit better into civilian life," said Stump.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration funded the London project with nearly $225,000.

The Yukon River is navigable from Whitehorse to the Bering Sea, a distance of over 2,000 miles. The river winds through Yukon and Alaska and is completely ice free from about June 10 until Oct. 5.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Woman rescues dogs living in 'sin'

DEAR ABBY: Now I've heard everything. Some woman out in California was so appalled by animals living in "sin" that she has founded The First Religion For Animals. She recently "married" two poodles, so now I suppose she can sleep better knowing that whatever these dogs do is legal, and therefore respectable.

Abby, do you actually believe that dogs are ashamed of anything they do, and that it makes a difference to them if they are "married" or not?

PUZZLED IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR PUZZLED: A "marriage ceremony" won't mean a thing to a couple of poodles, because dogs are not ashamed of their biological urges, which is more than I can say for the lady in California. Her "marrying" the dogs will help HER-not them.

DEAR ABBY: As a mother of two and a grandmother of none (so far), may I jump into the "to-have-or-not-to-have-children" issue?

When anyone asks my daughter (who's been married for four years) whether she plans to have any children she says: "We're not ready for children yet. Children are great, but once you have them, if you find out that motherhood isn't all it's cracked up to be, you can't send 'em back."

I think her attitude is far more realistic than girls who get all dewy-eyed over tiny babies-until they spit up, wet their diapers and cry all night.

I know. My children were no picnic to raise, and I admire my daughter and others in her generation who are wise enough to do their growing up before they have children of their own to bring up.

MRS. S. IN VA.

DEAR MRS. S.: Right on! Nothing is sadder than seeing children trying to bring up children.

DEAR ABBY: My son is being married. His mother and I have been divorced for two years, after 26 years of marriage. She still hasn't married the loveboy who broke up our home.

I have had no contact with my "ex" since our divorce, and although I've forgiven her, I don't care if I never see her again.

I am informed that loveboy will be at the wedding. I don't wish to shake hands with him or her.

Wouldn't it simplify matters if I just stayed away? Any suggestions?

MIDWESTERNITE

DEAR MID: If you want to go to your son's wedding, why let Loveboy keep you away? You needn't shake hands with anyone. Keep a comfortable distance, and if you meet head-on, give them a polite nod, and keep walking.

See lottery racketeering

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— An imposter in some parts of the state is offering to obtain licenses to sell lottery tickets for $100, a Lottery Commission spokesman said Wednesday.

The spokesman said two merchants in Gallipolis and one in East Sparta were contacted by a man falsely representing himself as a lottery employee.

The imposter offered to obtain lottery ticket sales licenses for $100, payable in installments, the commission spokesman said.

The imposter said the licenses could be obtained immediately if the money were paid in a lump sum, the spokesman said.

Police in the two communities have agreed to aid the lottery commission in investigating the incidents, the spokesman said.

Drop Rhodes poster investigation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Franklin County Prosecutor George C. Smith said Wednesday he doesn't believe promotion flyers advertising a poster purportedly showing former Gov.

Iron ore firms hit by walkout

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — The United Steelworkers of America walked off their jobs at midnight Wednesday, idling five iron ore companies on Minnesota's Mesabi Iron Range and a Duluth foundry.

Union members began picketing the firm's installations on the range following the breakdown of contract bargaining sessions in Duluth.

Union negotiators said a strike deadline involving the White Pine Copper Co. in White Pine, Mich., has been extended until 12:01 a.m. Saturday. The Michigan discussions involve about 2,600 employees.

The strike idles about 10,200 iron mine workers in the range communities and about 130 employees of the National Iron Co., a major foundry in the Duluth area.

The strike is against Reserve Mining Co., Erie Mining Co., Eveleth Taconite Co., Hanna Mining Co. and Cleveland Cliffs Iron Co.

The strike decision was made about 10 p.m. Wednesday and was announced by Peter J. Benzoni, Duluth, District 33 director for USW. The contract expired at midnight.

Union and management representatives "still are pretty far apart on the unresolved issues," Benzoni said. Among them he listed pay raises, pensions, hours of work, job evaluation, improved attendance bonuses, safety and health, and some "local issues."

James A. Rhodes in the nude violated Ohio's campaign laws.

Calling the flyers "deplorable," Smith said he didn't believe they violated two misdemeanor statutes of Ohio law beyond a reasonable doubt. He said he wouldn't present the case to a grand jury.

Smith, Republican candidate for attorney general, was given the case by the current attorney general, Democrat William J. Brown, who said an initial investigation showed that the issue was strictly a Franklin County matter.

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, also a Republican, conducted a hearing about the promotion and turned his findings over to the attorney general.

Danny Mahon, a former public relations man in the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, creator of the poster, said he was motivated by money, not politics.

The secretary of state said he launched his probe after a statehouse newsman showed him one of them on the promotion flyers. It did not list the name and address of the sender, required on campaign material.

Smith said he decided the flyer was not campaign material and it was not authored primarily to defeat a candidate. He said those were his two major legal considerations.

"I personally find it deplorable," he added. "I agree with Secretary of State Ted W. Brown that Ohio laws are weak in the area of campaign literature."

The posters advertised in the promotion purported to show Rhodes nude in front of the statehouse, covering himself with a copy of a 1969 issue of Life magazine carrying a headline, "The Governor and the Mobster."

The now defunct magazine did carry such an article, claiming Rhodes had problems with his federal income tax and indirectly claiming he had been friendly with mobsters.

Rhodes sued Time-Life Corp. for libel, but dismissed the action shortly after he lost the May, 1970 U.S. Senate primary battle to Robert Taft Jr.

A local advertising man said he posed nude for the poster for $25. A picture of Rhodes' face was then superimposed over the nude body and that in turn, put onto a picture of the north side of the statehouse.

Mahon said no posters were sold. He said he and some friends formed the Atomic Comic Poster Co. with the idea of making money.

The promotional flyer, which the secretary of state obtained, showed a four-inch square picture of the poster, which was said to measure 17 by 22 inches.

"Politics had nothing to do with it," Mahon said. "The whole thing was just a lark, an idea I had to make some money."

The first known Olympiad was held in 776 B. C.

Marriage vows exchanged in Hickory Lane Church

Miss Cathy Ackley and Alan (Bucky) Trout were united in marriage in the presence of members of the immediate families. Miss Ackley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ackley, 708 High St. Mr. Trout's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Norman Trout of 804 Dayton Ave.

The Rev. Keith Wooley performed the double-ring ceremony in the Hickory Lane Church of Christ.

The bride wore a street-length white crepe dress with empire waist and pearl trim. Her only jewelry was a pair of diamond earrings, a gift from the bridegroom. She carried a colonial bouquet of white and pink carnations.

Mrs. Dan Hoop of Kettering was matron of honor. Mr. Hoop served as best man.

Mrs. Hoop was attired in a mint green crepe dress with pink trim and she wore a corsage of pink carnations.

Mrs. Ackley, the bride's mother, wore a black and white jersey frock with white trim. The groom's mother chose a blue knit dress.

Hostesses for the reception held at Anderson's Restaurant following the ceremony were the bride's parents, Mrs. Gene Cabbage, aunt of the groom, and Mrs. Richard Stookey, all of Washington C. H.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Trout are both graduates of Washington Senior High School. He is employed by Lakeshore Equipment and Supply Company in Bloomingburg.

The couple is residing at 1115 Clemson Plaza, following a wedding trip to Lake Erie.

Guests present for the reception besides the parents of the couple were Miss Lisa Trout, sister of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Trout, grandparents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Hoop and daughter, Holly Beth, of Kettering; Mrs. Cabbage, Sherri Stookey and Mrs. Richard Stookey.

And the cooking is easy

THRIFTY MAIN DISH — Batter-fried eggplant, layered with Parmesan cheese and a quickly made tomato sauce, is topped with Mozzarella.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Now that cooks are on the lookout more than ever for thrifty main dishes, getting dinner is easy. When oven roasts were on the menu oftener than they are these days, the meat was usually accompanied by gravy, potatoes and other vegetables — all of which necessitated last-minute preparation. Now an inexpensive, get-ready-ahead dish frequently makes the main course and a salad and lots of good bread are the accompaniments. The result: just as delicious and nutritious eating and less fussing for the cook.

For this kind of main dish, we suggest Easy Eggplant Parmesan. The tomato sauce for it is quickly concocted from Italian-style spaghetti sauce mix — an excellent product that consists of natural ingredients and has no additives. In the recipe we suggest making the sauce and frying the eggplant ahead, then assembling the dish and baking just before serving. If you prefer, you can do the assembling as well as the preparation hours ahead of baking; in this case there is no need to reheat the sauce. Or, if you like, prepare and assemble the dish the day before serving, then cover and refrigerate; in this case, too, the sauce need not be reheated before assembling, but extra time should be allowed for oven-heating.

EASY EGGPLANT PARMESAN

$\frac{1}{8}$  1/2-ounce envelope Italian-style

spaghetti sauce mix, for use with tomato paste
3 eggs
3 tablespoons flour
1 1/2-pound eggplant
4 tablespoons (about) olive or other oil
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1/2 of an 8-ounce package Mozzarella cheese, sliced

Make up sauce according to package directions using the amount of oil, tomato paste and water called for; cover and set aside off heat.

In a shallow bowl, with a fork or whisk, beat eggs slightly; add flour and beat until smooth.

Rinse eggplant and dry; do not pare; cut a thin slice from both ends and discard; slice into 1/4-inch thick rounds. In a large skillet, heat 2 tablespoons of the oil. Dip eggplant in egg mixture and place in skillet in a single layer; brown slowly on both sides. Remove and continue browning remaining eggplant in same fashion, adding oil as needed. Cover lightly with wax paper or plastic wrap and set aside.

About 45 minutes before serving, preheat oven to 350 degrees. In an oblong glass baking dish (11 1/2 by 7 1/2 by 1 3/4 inches) or similar utensil, place a layer of eggplant. Reheat tomato sauce and cover eggplant with half the sauce; sprinkle with half the Parmesan. Add remaining eggplant, tomato sauce and Parmesan. Bake until bubbly-hot — about 30 minutes. Top with Mozzarella. Bake just until cheese melts — about 5 minutes longer.

Makes 6 servings.

Fruits of the season

By JOANO'SULLIVAN

THE FRUITS of summer are one of the delights of the sunshine season. Fruit, of course, is available frozen and canned all year round, but nothing tastes better than fresh fruit. The nectarines and Bartlett pears that California is sending to market now are juicy, flavorful treats fit for a king. Eat them out of hand, but don't stop there. They can be served in many ways.

WINE CURRIED PEARS WITH SHRIMP

2 fresh Bartlett pears
1 cup dry white wine or chicken broth
1/2 teaspoon curry powder
12 large shrimp, cooked
1/2 cup real mayonnaise
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Cut pears lengthwise into halves. Remove cores with small melon-baller or 1/2-teaspoon measure.

Poach pears, cut-sides down, in wine mixed with curry for 10 to 15 minutes until tender but not soft. Chill.

Peel and devein shrimp; arrange over each pear half. Pass the Mustard Mayonnaise (made by combining mayonnaise, mustard and lemon juice). If desired, serve with dry white wine.

Makes 4 servings.

Fruit and cheese are meant for each other, and never more-so than in this recipe. It's a glamorous looking salad, but so easy to prepare. Fresh Bartlett pears, pared and cored, are drizzled with piping hot cheese sauce. For variations on this theme, spoon the sauce over toast and top with sliced Bartletts and crisp bacon. Or top hamburgers with Bartletts and bacon and drizzle the sauce over them. If giant hot dogs are on deck, split them lengthwise, fill with diced Bartletts and top with cheese dressing.

PEAR RAREBIT SALAD

1 jar (8 ounces) pasteurized process American cheese spread
1 tablespoon white wine or water
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon onion powder
1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
4 fresh Bartlett pears
1 quart shredded western iceberg lettuce

Turn cheese into small saucepan. Stir in wine, lemon juice, onion powder and mustard. Heat stirring, until mixture is blended and piping hot.

Pare and core pears from blossom end, leaving stem on, if desired. Arrange lettuce on 4 salad plates. Center pear on each salad and spoon hot Rarebit Dressing over fruit. Serve at once.

Makes 4 servings.

It takes from 30 to 40 gallons of sap to make one gallon of maple syrup.

Mrs. Wheat guest speaker of local BPW Club Tuesday

"It's people who can laugh will solve tomorrow's problems," stated Mrs. Gerald Wheat, guest speaker for the July dinner-meeting of the Washington C.H. Business and Professional Women's Club Tuesday evening at the Washington Country Club.

In discussing her topic "What are you wearing for the rest of your life?" Mrs. Wheat urged members "to put on a sense of anticipation, wear joy and laughter for color, do what you are best suited for, wear cooperation in a group effort, and finally to put on a dab of love as the best perfume."

Three selections were sung by Cindy Arnold, Washington Senior High School graduate, who is currently majoring in music at the University of Texas. She was accompanied by Mrs. Ralph Yerian at the piano.

Miss Tonda Southers, a BPW scholarship recipient, presented highlights of her freshman year at Center College in Danville, Ky. where she is a Spanish and education major.

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Harold Cruea, president. The meeting was arranged by the Personal Development Committee with Mrs. Mark King and Mrs. Fred Shoop co-chairmen. Other committee members are Mrs. Homer Bireley, Mrs. Mary Crone, Mrs. Howard Dellinger, Mrs. Loreah O'Brian, Mrs. Robert Rodgers and Miss Lena Smith.

Guests present were Mrs. Virgil Hardman, Mrs. Ronald Salyers, Miss Melanie Morgan and Miss Rebecca Johnson.

Pennsylvania features sticky buns

STICKY BUNS — The dough is light and spongy, the topping sweet and flavorful.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A neighbor of mine makes the best Sticky Buns I've tasted in a long time. When I asked her how she evolved a dough that was so light and spongy, she answered "Dumb luck!" She went on to say that she had never been satisfied with the Sticky Bun recipes she had tried and so had improvised. The result is wonderful and we're giving you her recipe.

In our country, Philadelphia is the home of the Sticky Bun. But the following Sticky Buns differ from the Philadelphia version: they hold no raisins and the flavorful toppings, instead of being sweetened only with sugar, has light molasses added — just enough to point up flavor. My friend is from a Pennsylvania-German family and cooks of this background often use molasses as a flavorful sweetener.

SUPER STICKY BUNS

3/4 cup milk
1-3rd cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 packages active dry yeast
1/2 cup warm water
2 eggs
5 1/2 cups unsifted flour, stir to aerate before measuring
2 tablespoons soft butter
2-3rds cup sugar mixed with 1 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon
Topping, see below
2-3rds cup chopped pecans

In a small saucepan, scald milk; off heat add 1-3rd cup butter, the sugar and salt; stir until butter melts; cool to lukewarm.

In a large mixing bowl dissolve the yeast in the water; whisk in milk mixture and eggs until blended. Add 3 cups of the flour and mix until smooth. Gradually and thoroughly mix in 2 more cups of the flour — dough will be soft.

Turn out onto a lightly floured surface and knead until smooth and elastic (5 to 8 minutes), using the remaining 1/2 cup flour to keep dough from sticking.

Place dough in large greased bowl; turn to grease top; cover. Let rise in a warm place until double in bulk — 30 to 40 minutes.

Divide dough in half; on a lightly floured surface roll out one half to a 14 by 10 inch rectangle; spread with 1 tablespoon of the soft butter and sprinkle with half the sugar-cinnamon mixture. Starting at long side, roll up and pinch edges to seal. Cut into 9 slices; set aside. Treat remaining half of dough the same way.

Make up Topping. Divide this syrup between 2 greased 9-inch square cake pans. Sprinkle nuts over syrup. Place 9 slices of the dough, cut sides down, in each pan.

Cover and let rise in a warm place until double in bulk — 30 to 40 minutes. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until golden-brown — 25 to 30 minutes. Turn out on wire racks. Wonderful served fresh and warm from the oven.

Makes 18.

Topping: Into a small saucepan turn 1/2 cup butter or margarine, 1 cup sugar, 1/4 cup light molasses and 1 tablespoon water; stir over moderate heat until sugar dissolves and mixture simmers.

Phi Beta Psi holds annual swim party

Phi Beta Psi Sorority Actives, Inactives, Associates and guests enjoyed swimming, tennis, and a carry-in supper at Cedarhurst, Monday evening.

Mrs. Donald P. Woods, Active Chapter President, welcomed invited guests Mrs. Phil French, Mrs. Otis Hess, Mrs. Ronald Jenkins, Mrs. Henry Roszmann, Mrs. Max Schlichter, Mrs. Dale Willis, and Mrs. Davis Willis.

As Gamma's official delegate to the Phi Beta Psi National Convention at San Antonio, Texas, in July, Mrs. Woods told of her experiences there. The Convention theme was appropriately "A Mexican Holiday." The colorful city is 75 percent Mexican and reminiscent of a South of the Border Venice as it is built right up to several rivers.

Mrs. Woods reviewed some of the philanthropic efforts that Phi Beta Psi has extended around the nation. During the 1973-74 year over $51,000.00 was awarded to various institutions and individuals in the form of Cancer Research Grants, the sorority's national project. On a local level, 59 chapters contributed $87,381.00 to other Civic and Charitable projects. Of those totals Gamma was responsible for nearly $2000.00.

The evening concluded with members and guests playing tennis and socializing.

Mrs. Woods was chairman of the reunion committee with Mrs. Gene Elliott, Mrs. Paul Johnson and Mrs. Jim Cunningham assisting.

Noble-Osborne plans complete

Miss Sally Noble and Mr. James Osborne have completed plans for their open church wedding which will take place August 3 at 2 p.m., in the First Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Gerald Wheat officiating.

Miss Noble has asked Miss Pam Henry to be her maid of honor. Her bridesmaids will be Miss Mary Jo Thornton, Miss Debbie Merritt, and Miss Jean Osborne, sister of the prospective groom.

Mr. Rick Thomas will serve as best man for Mr. Osborne. Groomsmen will be Mr. John Foy, Mr. John Bogenrife, and Mr. Jim Noble, brother of the bride-to-be.

Hostesses for the reception will be Mrs. Greg Noble, Miss Susan Reisinger, Mrs. Jack Iles and Mrs. Ronald Batson. Miss Jodi Reisinger will preside at the guest book.

Mrs. Wayne Spengler will be organist and Mr. David Puckett will be the vocalist.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Glen King have returned to their home in Sacramento, Calif., following a two-week visit with Mrs. King's mother, Mrs. John Weade of 1035 Washington Ave., and other relatives. Mrs. King accompanied them for a three-day visit with their son-in-law and daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff (Jo Ellen) Fonger and children, Corrie and Chad in Flint, Mich.

When you cook new potatoes in their skin, do so in about an inch of boiling salted water. Use about one-quarter teaspoon salt for each half-cup of water.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The three TV networks, electronic eyes steady and microphones ready, say their annual pro football blitz will start on schedule this month, even if some of the best-known players don't.

Indian Lake ski zone closed; water low

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Department of Natural Resources said Wednesday that the north ski zone at Indian Lake State Park will be temporarily closed because of the low water level.

A lack of rainfall has caused the lake's level to drop about a foot, said Rod Cooper, chief of DNR's division of parks and recreation.

He said underwater hazards such as tree stumps are coming closer to the surface.

No fires are being permitted in the camping area because dry ground conditions already have caused several grass fires, the chief said.

Cooper noted that both measures will remain in effect until enough rain falls to eliminate hazards.

School board named in taxpayer lawsuit

MARION, Ohio (AP) — The Marion County Joint Vocational School Board of Education was named in a lawsuit Wednesday by a citizens group who allege their area was set up illegally as a taxing district.

A spokesman for the group said the Marion County auditor and treasurer also were named in the suit because the citizens claim they had no vote in the decision to join the school district.

The 32-day-old NFL players' strike still is under way and less than 2½ weeks remain before the start of preseason play, a Cincinnati Bengals-Atlanta Falcons joust NBC will televise on Aug. 17.

Even if the strike isn't over by then, ABC, NBC and CBS officials say, there still are no current plans to drop any games from the three-network schedule of 196 games, from preseason to Pro Bowl.

The only uncertain note is sounded by a spokesman for ABC Sports President Roone Arledge, whose network has 18 pro games—including the Jan. 20 Pro Bowl in Miami—coming up this season.

Asked if ABC might not televise several of the early games if the strike doesn't end, the spokesman replied: "That's a hard question, because we've talked about that and really haven't made a decision."

But he emphasized that as of now, ABC's schedule remains unchanged.

As if ABC doesn't have enough to worry about, its "NFL Monday Night Football" opener on Aug. 19 will, for the first time in its history, be competing against NBC's "Monday Night Baseball" game.

At CBS, and NBC, each facing an 89-game schedule, the official word is that no games will be dropped, even if the strike continues.

The year's pro football package is costing the networks in excess of $52 million.

Industry sources say ABC, whose games are in costly prime evening time, is charging national advertisers an average of $100,000 per minute for its preseason and regular season games.

The preseason tab at CBS and NBC is $60,000 and $49,000 a minute, respectively, sources say. The networks, which decline to say what prices they're charging, each plan to air three preseason games.

Man offers insurance for good life

MOUNT CARMEL, Ohio (AP) — Ertzel Huffine, 50, of Mount Carmel, is offering his $20,098 life insurance policy to anyone who will give him $18,000 cash. He said he wants to enjoy himself in his last remaining time while dying of cancer.

Huffine said he will name whoever gives him the cash as beneficiary. It will mean a $2,000 profit, he said, adding he has only a year or two to live.

Huffine said there is other insurance that will take care of the needs of his family when he dies. He said he has consulted a lawyer who told him it could be done.

Huffine did not guarantee the payment could be challenged later in the courts, however. The offer was rejected by a bank, he said.

"The only thing that has to be done, and it's my prerogative, is to change the beneficiary," he said. The policy now names Huffine's wife, Beulah, he said.

Huffine said he wants to pay his debts, fix up the house and do some traveling with his wife.

"I've been quite a few places in my life, but my wife has been to very few places. I'd like to travel through the South. I'd also like to take her to Hawaii, because I loved it, and she's never been any place like that."

"When you raise six kids, you don't get a chance to do too much," he said. The children, ages 18-29, all live away from home.

"This is our chance—maybe. If I can live that long. But I have no guarantees."

Window washer ever on alert

By ROBERT L. SHAFFER
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Hanging on the outside of the 52-story Terminal Tower, Paul Flannery thinks sometimes "on a real clear day" he can see the Canadian shoreline 60 miles across Lake Erie.

Not that Flannery, who has been washing windows in high places for 27 of his 57 years, spends much time gazing at the scenery.

"You have to keep your wits about you," he said, talking to a reporter outside the penthouse suite 20 stories up on the Republic building, a part of the Terminal complex in downtown Cleveland.

Flannery offers some tips for window washers.

In the winter when sharp, cold winds are blowing, it helps to have alcohol in the water but not in your system.

"You have to keep your mind on what you're doing. One mistake, you know..." Flannery raised his sand-colored eyebrows, flashed a smile and glanced at the railroad tracks more than 20 stories below.

Flannery, who works for ITT Building Services, had a warning about silts, too. Those made of poured concrete aren't very reliable.

He recalled having a concrete sill disappear from under him while he was working at a hotel during World War II. "I hooked on one hook and stepped out and the whole sill fell off," he said. "It hit the ballroom roof and just powdered."

"The Navy was using the building at the time and the Waves were eating lunch. Some of them thought we'd been bombed."

The one hook on his safety belt saved him.

There are stone sills on the 4,200 windows of the Republic, Midland and Guildhall buildings where Flannery and his partner, Joe Zdravac, now work, but a few of them are terra cotta, said Flannery.

"It's like marble," he said. "When it's wet it's like glass. Your foot hits it and it can go whoosh." His hand shot out to demonstrate how fast a foot can go on a wet terra cotta sill.

Flannery said that was the type of sill on the Terminal Tower window where Zdravac's brother, John, 46, was working when he fell 12 stories to his death Aug. 17, 1970.

Flannery and his partner start crawling out windows at 4 a.m. daily and finish 80 to 100 windows a day. By 12:30 p.m. Flannery is ready to head back to suburban Independence to mow his acre of grass or work in his garden.

In the summertime there are "some terrific volleyball games" with his wife, Betty, and the children still living at home. Four of his seven children have finished college, three with master's degrees.

Weekends Flannery plays tenor sax in a small band. It was the sax, he said, which led indirectly to a window-washing career. That and the loss of his left eye in a shooting accident in Pittsburgh that kept him out of the Army when the other band members went into the Armed Forces during World War II.

"My guitar player's uncle owned a window cleaning company in Cleveland and they needed help, so I came up here to work in the office," he said. "When I saw what the guys were making washing windows, I said, 'You can get someone else to work in the office.'"

Flannery keeps in good shape swimming and ice skating, but he said he doesn't do window sill acrobatics any more.

Pointing to the 14-story Citizens Building a few blocks away, Flannery recalled that he used to "swing from window to window all the way across that building."

"Those windows are seven bricks apart," he said. "You unhook your safety belt on both sides and swing around, holding the bucket in one hand and grabbing a hook on the next window with your index finger."

"That was when I was 30. I look back now and think, 'Oh, my God, did I really do things like that?'"

Attic space built without houses

By GERALD J. TAYLOR
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — More than three million square feet of attic space is being built in Chicago's densely populated suburbs, and not a square inch of it is attached to a house.

"People need places to store things, and apartment and condominium builders never seem to provide enough space," says Ray Hitchcock, an O'Brien Engineering Co. vice president.

The firm's answer is the mini-warehouse.

For a fee ranging from $2.50 to $3.75 per square foot, clients can store by the month anything from boats on trailers to unwanted gifts.

The thrust of the development is directed toward the young, cramped apartment dweller whose hobbies and buying power have combined to threaten self-eviction.

With homes being constructed without attics—or basements, in many areas—homeowners, too, find extra storage space attractive, Hitchcock said.

Out-of-season sports equipment, clothing and other goods not needed daily but unworthy of a garage sale are among items most often stored, according to the firm.

Another sought-after client is the businessman who has run out of warehouse space, or didn't have any to begin with.

Basic rental units range in size from 60 to 250 square feet.

Within a few months, O'Brien's construction subsidiary will erect 24 of the new-fangled attics. The cost averages $750,000 for a 60,000-square-foot warehouse.

"We figure we can get one renter from every 18 apartments," Hitchcock said.

"We plan to construct three million square feet of storage space within three years," Hitchcock said.

O'Brien, a commercial architectural firm, developed the plans for the miniwarehouses, but builds them for a variety of investors.

Hitchcock says the miniwarehouses have been built in the less-populated West and Southwest for some time.

Live bait best for summer days

By JIM DAUBEL

Written for Associated Press

Purists would sneer at the thought, but if there is a foolproof fishing bait, it is alive, whatever it is.

Live bait is especially good on summer's hottest, muggiest days when even the fish are moved to ride out the sweltering heat by doing little or nothing about anything—including lunch and dinner.

Traditional favorite creepy crawlers are night crawlers, minnows, crayfish, red worms, grubs, grasshoppers, maggots and frogs, plus a few exotics such as salamanders and belgramites.

All these baits are found in Ohio, but the first three are by far the most popular, both because they are widely available commercially and because they are effective in taking many species of game fish.

Aside from understanding the habits and habitat of fish you pursue, the key to success in fishing live bait is knowing the proper techniques for offering choice morsels to your quarry.

Panfish, for example, are suckers for small minnows. Largemouth bass go for minnows, night crawlers and crayfish, with the latter appealing especially to smallmouth bass.

When fishing with a bobber, use light line, the lighter the better. Four-pound test monofilament is ideal for panfish; 6-pound for bass in open water, and 8- or 10-pound test for bass in moderate cover.

Use a light bobber also. I prefer round cork floats just large enough to keep the bait suspended, yet allowing it the freedom to swim about naturally. A small splitshot sinker is adequate to hold the minnow down.

Keep the bait alive and lively, beginning at the bait shop. Minnow water should be changed often. Keeping the water cool also helps prolong minnow life.

Night crawlers should be kept cool in moist bedding or in shredded newspaper. Crayfish are hardy but they need cool, not cold, temperatures.

Do not pierce vital organs when putting live bait on the hook. For bobber fishing, run the point of the hook through the minnow's back muscle behind the dorsal fin. To cast and retrieve a minnow along the bottom, hook it through the lips.

Crayfish stay lively when impaled though the tail and worms remain wiggle longer if you hook them through the heavier end but not through the wide band that encircles their body.

The whole idea in live bait fishing is to present the bait as naturally as possible. No artificial lure can compete with natural food.

Public indecency charges leveled

GALION, Ohio (AP) — A Michigan couple were convicted of public indecency when they went to a laundromat, stripped down and tossed their dirty clothes in a washer.

James Gordenier of Troy, Mich., and Linda Dolan of Farmington, Mich., were fined $50 each and sentenced to three days in jail at a special mayor's court Wednesday.

Police said they received a call shortly after midnight from a citizen who said he was offended when he saw the couple in the laundromat.

Police said they caught up with the pair at a local hotel.

'Xenia Lives' as bumper stickers boast

XENIA — This southwestern Ohio community almost died about four months ago.

However, today as one tours the city there's a very striking message on nearly every car bumper and store window.

THE MESSAGE reads "Xenia Lives" and has served as a trademark of the community and signals the spirit and sheer determination of the residents to make a comeback since the devastating April 3 tornado.

At 4:40 p.m. on that day a tornado crashed through the Greene County city with a population of 26,500. The twister, which was termed the worst disaster since floods struck nearby Dayton in 1913, killed 32 people (one in every 1,000), injured 1,000, devastated 184 businesses, destroyed the homes of 1,200 families and heavily damaged another 1,400 houses.

The city looked like a war zone. Three schools were smashed. Hundreds of automobiles and other vehicles wrecked. Thousands of windows shattered. The city's streets became junkyards.

People, some wiping tears from their eyes, stood dazed beside their demolished homes and businesses. Some were mourning the loss of loved ones.

Authorities estimated property damage at $75 million in Xenia. President Nixon declared Ohio a disaster area.

At nearby Central State University, the campus was closed. Many buildings were ruined by the storm.

Some 1,500 Ohio National Guard troops were on duty in Xenia to patrol debris-filled streets, provide emergency power and medical assistance and operate heavy equipment being used to remove felled trees, finish knocking down wrecked buildings and clear paths through littered streets.

A common sight in neighboring Xenia

But, in a matter of just a few days, strength replaced the tears, and with spirit and a lot of work, Xenia picked itself up.

TODAY, as the bumper stickers boast, Xenia does live

Library education program is slated

Children who are entering grades four, five, six, and seven are invited to attend a library education program at Carnegie Public Library, at 3 p.m., Monday.

The program is designed to encourage reading, to make children aware of the varied resources the library offers in addition to books, to enable them to use the library to follow individual interests, and to introduce them to useful reference sources.

The program will include a tour of the library, a talk with the Bookworm, filmstrips on using the library, and the story filmstrips "Treasure Island" and "The Tale of Jeremy Fisher". It will last approximately an hour and a half.

Grain, animal prices up sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grain and meat animal prices on the farm jumped sharply during the month ended July 15 and are once again putting pressure on consumer food costs.

Over-all, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday, prices farmers get for raw products averaged 6 per cent higher than they did a month before on June 15.

Although corn prices soared to a new peak and wheat climbed again, the high livestock prices could be felt soonest in the consumer market. Grains, basically, take longer to be converted into supermarket foods.

Cattle prices, which had slumped for month, averaged $35 per 100 pounds of live weight at mid-month. Although up $2.70 from June 15, the average was still far below the record of $51.70 last August.

Hog prices jumped the most during the month, rising $11 to $34.50 per hundred-weight in mid-July. Last summer hogs hit a peak of $56.50 at the farm.

Despite declines for sheep and lambs, the department's price index for all meat animals was up 16 per cent from mid-June. However, it was 21 per cent below the July 15 level last year. Meat accounts for nearly one-third of family food spending.

Corn prices, prompted by severe dry weather and prospects for a reduced harvest next fall, soared to a record $2.91 per bushel at the farm, up from $2.57 in June and the previous high of $2.76 per bushel last February. Wheat rose to an average farm price nationally of $4.04 per bushel from $3.57 in June. The record was set at $5.52 per bushel last February. In another report Wednesday USDA said the wheat price outlook is uncertain.

"Normally, a bountiful crop depresses prices at harvest but that has not happened so far this season," the department's Outlook and Situation Board said.

"Farmers have not marketed as much of the early harvest as usual and with market supplies tight and prospects declining for feed grains early season buying has pushed prices up sharply," the board said.

The over-all farm price increase from June 15 to July 15 was the first since last February. The index then declined for four consecutive months. But despite the higher level on July 15 the index was only 1 per cent above its mark on the same date last year, the department said.

Not all commodities showed increases from June to July. Prices for milk, cotton, peaches and dry beans led those which declined, the report said. The dairy price index, for example, dropped five per cent during the month, while the fruit price index declined 12 per cent from mid-June.

Juvenile detention center work progressing rapidly

CHILLICOTHE — Work is progressing rapidly on the South Central Regional Juvenile Detention Center off U.S. 35, near Chillicothe.

Grant McDonald, a Ross County commissioner and chairman of the South Central Juvenile Detention Center board of trustees, said the exterior walls are nearly complete with the contractor, King Construction Co., now preparing to pour the floors for the facility located on Cattail Road.

Construction supervisor Earl Bowman said once the floors are poured it will allow the sub-contractors to proceed with interior projects such as electric and plumbing.

The facility will serve Pickaway,

Vinton, Pike, Jackson, Ross and Highland counties. It will cost approximately $800,000. The counties involved will be required to pay about $49,000 each, McDonald said.

McDonald noted that the state has delivered the first payment of $62,968 for the project. The funding came from the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development.

"Staffing for the project is now being considered by the board of trustees and some appointments are expected soon," McDonald said.

The first recorded rowing regatta in Canada was held in Toronto Bay in 1848.

Washington C.H.

New life began with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers moving 860,000 cubic yards of debris — hundreds of truckloads — out of town.

Some wondered if the community would ever be the same. But dedication quickly halted that question.

The community's dedication first took the form of a 17-member "Spirit of '74" committee. Sixty meetings were held in five weeks.

The results were poured into a city master plan. The city master plan actually served as an urban renewal type of program.

Building restrictions were slapped on the downtown area until the master plan and rezoning were completed. There were a few gripes, but most residents were in favor of giving the master plan a chance.

The crux of the plan, of course, is money.

The community has borrowed a $21,000 per year "director of community development" from the federal government. It is now William Korte's job to get as much money as he can from a variety of federal agencies.

Korte has said the bare minimum needed is $10 million, but hopes that about $20 million can be obtained from the federal government.

The city's school system was crippled, but a large federal grant already has been received and will enable the construction of temporary school buildings that will provide enough classrooms for this fall.

Redman Industries, Inc., of Washington C.H., was awarded a $1.7 million contract to construct three modular type temporary school buildings for the tornado-torn school district.

The contract, totaling $1,786,335, will be paid for with funds provided by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The temporary buildings, which will house about 1,800 of Xenia's 8,000 students, will allow all of the school system's pupils to attend classes in Xenia next school year. The temporary classrooms are expected to be completed by September 1.

Plans call for two of the buildings to be used for elementary grades on the sites of the destroyed Simon Kenton school and at a location on Wyoming Avenue in the devastated Arrowhead Subdivision. The third building will handle junior high school students and will be located at Warner Junior High School.

The buildings will be used for a minimum of two years and can then be taken apart and resold. The money for the resale will revert back to the federal government.

MEANWHILE, trailers have enabled many businesses to reopen until permanent construction gets started.

Some gas stations operate the same way. The only permanent fixtures are the pumps. The attendant and cash register are situated in a trailer.

The town's largest industry — the Kroehler Furniture Co. — also was flattened.

Before the tornado there had been talk that the factory might pull up stakes and move out of town. The 250 employees were afraid the twister had sealed their fate. But, the plant will stay in Xenia.

Until production can be resumed, plant manager Chester Minton has convinced company owners to keep all employees on either full or partial payment.

Memorials are being planned for the 32 killed and the two Ohio National Guardsmen who later died in a fire in the community, but the city's leaders prefer to look ahead.

The city will use the annual "old fashioned days" in September as a sort of "coming out party" for residents. And merchants are planning the most elaborate celebration ever in an attempt to prove "Xenia Lives."

Ohio Bell says customers unaware of phone 'rules'

The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. is increasing its efforts to make sure customers know what equipment is authorized and properly connected to its lines — and what isn't.

"More and more firms are energetically marketing telephone equipment such as telephones and answering sets for sale to our customers," according to Washington C.H. commercial manager Bruce Galloway. "We have received complaints recently that customers are not acquainted with the rules that apply to connecting these phones and other equipment to our lines," he said.

Throughout Ohio Bell's territory, in fact, there are probably many thousands of phone instruments and other telephone related equipment purchased by customers and connected incorrectly to the telephone company's lines, Galloway said. "Since last year we've accelerated the procedure we've always had of testing lines to ensure that our records accurately reflect all phones in use."

The test, Galloway said, involves an electrical measurement, but no voice monitoring whatsoever. To date, the test has turned up more than 4,000 customer-owned telephones and other equipment improperly connected.

What should the consumer do? "A customer can purchase a telephone or telephone device from one of many retailers offering communications equipment," Galloway said, "but we have to be called prior to installation because Ohio Bell still has the responsibility of ensuring that it's connected to the telephone network properly, and that our network is properly protected.

"We may have to provide a protective device or our own working components, for which there are charges in most cases, to ensure that the instrument will not cause trouble for the owner or for other customers."

Problems such as cross talk, wrong numbers and improper billing can affect not only the owner of a faulty set but other phone users as well, he said, because the telephone is a two-way instrument unlike the electrical appliances that many compare it with.

Galloway continued, "Ohio Bell has 'end-to-end' responsibility for service under the supervision and regulation of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio. It is our responsibility that customer-owned equipment connected to our lines does not affect the service of others, or cause harm to our employees and our property."

Ohio Bell will continue to measure lines so that it covers all of its customers periodically.

"We have received excellent cooperation from nearly all of the customers we've contacted to explain the rules or 'tariffs' that have been developed to maintain good telephone service," Galloway concluded. "But please don't wait for us to call you. Please call us, especially if you are not clear on your responsibilities or ours," he said.

Congress OKs busing bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A long dispute over busing of school children has ended in compromise, and a $25 billion aid to education bill is on its way to President Nixon today.

The House passed the revised measure Wednesday, 328 to 83, turning back last-ditch efforts by antibusing forces to precipitate still another confrontation with the Senate.

The House previously had voted three times to instruct its conferees to stand firm on a provision that would practically prohibit busing past the next nearest school and allow reopening of court cases in which busing had been ordered.

The compromise finally adopted permits courts to order busing when such measures are needed to protect the constitutional rights of minority children. The reopener provision was deleted.

Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., senior Republican member of the House Education and Labor Committee, said he expects Nixon to sign the bill.

Last week's Supreme Court decision striking down a controversial Detroit across-boundaries busing order apparently helped put the compromise over.

Arrests

SHERIFF

WEDNESDAY — Timothy J. Murphy, 18, Hillsboro, warrant from Hillsboro for reckless operation; Kenneth L. Collins, 37, Mount Sterling, private warrant for assault.

For speeding:

WEDNESDAY — James R. Steinbach, 26, Port Washington; Paul E. Adams, 27, Fort Mitchell, Ky.; Joseph F. Clear, 53, Hamilton, disobeyed traffic signal; Thomas A. Fay, 30, Cincinnati; Allen P. Tobias, 18, Plymouth, Mich.; Frank A. Thompson, 29, Cincinnati.

Light docket is aired in Muny Court

Acting Judge Omar Schwart heard one traffic and two non-traffic cases in Municipal Court Wednesday night.

The traffic case involved a charge of excessive noise levied by city police against Jerry D. Tuttle, 18, Ohio 753. He forfeited $35 bond.

Ricky R. Bryan, 18, of 721 Eastern Ave., pleaded no contest to a charge of assault filed on a private warrant. He was found guilty by Judge Schwart and fined $10.

A Lyndon man pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct by intoxication, lodged against him by the Washington C.H. Police Department.

Floyd H. Sims, 27, was fined $35 by Judge Schwart.

Reds overrun Viet positions

DA NANG, South Vietnam (AP) — North Vietnamese forces apparently overran two government positions today near Que Son, the fourth district town being threatened in the northern coastal region below Da Nang.

The two posts southwest of Que Son were attacked about half an hour apart, and radio contact was lost with both. One was manned by 400 men and the other by about 100, and there was no word of the garrisons.

The Saigon command reported attacks continued around Thuong Duc, Duc Duc and Dai Loc.

10 inmates face action

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Ten inmates at the state's maximum security prison face disciplinary action following a massive shakedown that yielded about 50 pieces of contraband, a corrections spokesman said today.

The ten inmates were found with contraband, but no weapons in their cells, the spokesman said.

Joseph Ashley, spokesman for the Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Corrections, said between 10 and 15 actual weapons were found in the search at the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility which houses about 1,100 inmates.

"The other items were pills, strips of metal, things that could be made into weapons," Ashley said.

The shakedown began Monday night after four stabbings in the prison during a two-week period. One inmate died and three others are recuperating from their wounds.

Ashley said no stainless steel weapons of the kind used in the stabbings were found during the shakedown.

"The shakedown went pretty fast," Ashley said. "The prison returned to normal operations Wednesday."

Silver has been taken from a mine near Goslar, Germany, since 968.

DUST MOSAIC — Corn field of the David Marple farm near Topeka, Kan., cracks because of drought conditions in the Midwest. Undissolved fertilizer pellets can be found in the cracks. Drought conditions are threatening crops in the midwest.

Tiger undergoes cataract surgery

CHICAGO (AP) — A 10-month-old Siberian tiger has undergone cataract surgery, just like humans, more or less.

The 169-pound animal was strapped on his back to a table on Wednesday, draped with gray surgical sheets and thoroughly anesthetized—very thoroughly anesthetized.

The tiger lives at Lincoln Park Zoo and is one of a few hundred of the endangered species remaining in the wild and in captivity.

After being sedated, he was taken—like his brother in January—to the University of Illinois medical center, where a team of doctors and nurses awaited him.

Surgery was delayed more than an hour because the medical team had trouble finding a vein in which to inject the anesthetic.

After that, everything went smoothly, with the tiger only occasionally twitching a paw or breathing heavily.

Dr. Edward Cotlier, professor of ophthalmology at the university, operated first on the left eye. Then Dr. Samuel J. Vainisi, a Green Bay, Wis., veterinarian, operated on the right eye.

All the while, Dr. Barbara Stein, also a veterinarian, listened to the tiger's heart through her stethoscope and felt his pulse while anesthetic dripped into a vein in the right hind leg.

Vainisi explained the operation, which could be seen on a television screen as it proceeded.

The doctors looked through magnifying lenses as they did their work, first making a tiny incision in the eye, then injecting an instrument to remove the cataract.

The actual removal took only about six minutes for each eye.

The unnamed tiger will be fitted with a big projecting collar so he cannot scratch his eyes while they are healing. His keepers will have to put drops in his eyes three or four times a day for several weeks to aid in the healing.

Dr. Erich R. Maschgan, a Lincoln Park Zoo veterinarian, said the animal had lost 90 per cent of his vision before surgery and had difficulty even finding his food.

"His brother did beautifully," Maschgan said, adding that there is every reason to expect that this animal will too.

Commissioners OK ditch improvement

The Indian Creek watershed improvement project was approved, as amended, by the Fayette County Board of Commissioners at the hearing Wednesday morning.

County engineer Charles P. Wagner was authorized to advertise for bid to be submitted to the Board of Commissioners by 11 a.m. Sept. 3.

The project will start on the Mary Sollars land near Ohio 753 and continue to the open portion ending on Dr. Joseph M. Herbert's farm and thence to the Camp Grove Road.

The four owners of the farms through which a portion of the ditch runs, have agreed to prepare and seed the open ditch above or parallel to the tile ditch. Repair of the tile ditch under or paralleling the open ditch is included in the project.

It was estimated the total cost of the project will be reduced from an estimated $33,000 to approximately $23,000 by the agreement of the four landowners — Lucille Braden, Dr. Joseph M. Herbert, Willard N. Parrett and William Shepard — to install the grass waterway.

The project cost will be shared by the county, the state, Wayne Township and 52 property owners through assessment.

A Marriage Saved by Relying on God

There is nothing more central to the message of the Bible than unselfed love and the healing of human relations.

New Nixon tape gap reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than five minutes are missing from White House tapes of a Watergate conversation between President Nixon and his two closest advisers at the time the cover-up was unraveling.

Nixon's chief attorney, James D. St. Clair, disclosed the new tape gap in papers submitted on Wednesday to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

The gap occurred because a tape reel ran out midway through a 45-minute meeting between Nixon, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman on April 17, 1973, St. Clair wrote.

"Judging from the notations on the tape boxes, the tape ran out and was replaced in the midst of this conversation," St. Clair said. "A timing of the two segments indicates that approximately five minutes and 12 seconds of conversation were never recorded."

The disclosure was contained in an eight-page index and analysis of the tapes of 20 conversations delivered to Sirica Tuesday in partial compliance with a subpoena for recordings of 64 conversations. Tapes of another 13 sessions are due in court Friday and the others are to be turned over later.

Nixon must relinquish the tapes to Sirica for his private inspection to determine which parts to provide Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski for use in the cover-up trial beginning in September.

The judge was weighing Nixon's request that portions of 10 of the conversations in the first batch be withheld from Jaworski.

Nixon claims those portions are shielded from disclosure by executive privilege and that they are unrelated to the Watergate case.

St. Clair stated the executive privilege claims in the papers submitted to Sirica during a one-hour closed hearing and later filed in the public record.

The White House has published edited transcripts of the 20 conversations already surrendered.

The gap in the April 17 conversation is the only missing portion St. Clair listed.

According to the White House transcript, Nixon, Haldeman and Ehrlichman spent the 45-minute session discussing the wording of a public statement Nixon would make later that day. In it, he announced

"major developments" in the Watergate investigation, said White House staff members would testify if summoned before the Senate Watergate committee and declared no top administration employees would be given immunity from prosecution.

St. Clair listed the page of the transcript at which the gap occurred but did not note the precise point of the omission. It could not be clearly determined from reading the transcript.

The executive privilege claims involve Nixon's meetings with aides on March 27, April 14, April 15, April 16 and April 17, 1973, the period after John W. Dean III and Jeb S. Magruder had confessed to prosecutors.

In all cases, the segments are excluded from the White House transcripts with the notation "material unrelated to presidential actions deleted."

Kentucky boards under attack

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Some legislative sentiment has been expressed for exercising control over state licensing boards to be sure they do not discriminate against new applicants.

Suggestions along that line came in Wednesday's meeting of the interim legislative committee on business organizations and professions. Rep. Sam Thomas, D-Lebanon, for example, noted that a person without hands would be unable to take the written test for a real estate salesman's license, and said the requirement should be modified.

Sen. Daisy Thaler, D-Louisville, said such consideration should also be given persons with other impairments and disabilities that could keep them from taking written tests for various occupations.

County receives share of gas excise taxes

Fayette County was distributed a total of $10,253 in gasoline excise taxes for July.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson's office distributed a total of $9,618,419 in gasoline taxes in July to Ohio's counties, townships, and cities and villages.

The distribution in Fayette County included Washington C.H., $8,920; Bloomingburg, $551; Jeffersonville, $607; Milledgeville, $96; New Holland, $52 and Octa, $27.

Deputy State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson said each of the 1,320 townships received $1,200 for a total of $1,584,000 and each of the 88 counties received $35,000 for a total of $3,080,000.

Distributions to the counties for their townships ranged from $4,800 to Cuyahoga to $32,400 to Ashtabula.

Brothers united after 18 years

By PAUL ROLFES

Associated Press Writer

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (AP) — John and Earl Carter, who were separated 18 years ago and hadn't seen each other since, spent a day Wednesday reminiscing about how they each had spent almost half their lives.

John, 40, came from Indianapolis with his wife, Linda, and two children. Earl, 32, brought his wife, Beverly, who is expecting their first child, from Middletown, Ohio.

The meeting had been scheduled for 10 a.m. but John forgot about an hour's difference in time zones between Ohio and Indiana and arrived about 11:30.

"Are you looking for someone from Indianapolis?" John asked as he led his family almost directly to Earl.

"They should have wore name tags," Linda said.

The two looked much the same physically and were dressed in similar shirts and nearly-identical plaid pants.

Earl had been raised by an uncle and aunt in the small city of Trenton, which is near Middletown. The brothers decided on the phone to meet at Kings Island Amusement Park because John had brought his family there once before.

"The last time we saw each other was Easter Sunday, 1956," John said. "I had graduated from high school and outfitted Earl for Easter. Then I went out looking for work."

Earl is employed as a painter in Middletown and John is a quality control manager for an engineering company in Indianapolis.

John said they have one sister living somewhere in Kentucky. He has been in contact with two sisters and one brother living near Indianapolis, but that he couldn't get in touch with them Tuesday to invite them to come along.

The brother's first step in finding each other came when the uncle Earl had lived with as a boy told him that he knew John was living in Indianapolis. Earl had told Glenn Reynolds, and the friend had offered to help in the search.

Reynolds knew a telephone operator who called Indianapolis, only to discover that there were 23 Carter's in the directory. The second number was the correct one.

"It was just fate that we could meet Earl," John said.

Earl said he felt that the 1½ hour wait was almost longer than the entire 18 year separation.

"You both should have sent pictures or given descriptions on the phone," Beverly said when it became apparent the other brother would be delayed.

John and Earl said they plan to spend some time together to get reacquainted again.

Woman charged after accident

A young Washington C.H. man was injured while riding his motorcycle in the vicinity of Clinton Avenue and Draper Street, at 11 p.m. Wednesday.

John W. Gosney, 21, of 608 High St., was treated at Fayette Memorial Hospital for a bruised right ankle and foot. He was later released.

City police reported the accident occurred when a car driven by Shirley L. Fetherolf, 23, Mark Road, did not stop in time to keep from hitting Gosney's cycle. Gosney was sitting on the motorcycle while stopped in traffic. Ms. Fetherolf attempted to steer around the motorbike but clipped the foot peg. She was charged by police officers with failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead.

A minor two-car accident also occurred at the intersection of Columbus Avenue and Willard Street Wednesday at noon, police reported.

Cars driven by Warren R. Geer, 74,

Palmer Road, and Charles B. Eastes, 18, of 318 S. North St., collided, but there were no injuries.

Minor blaze extinguished

A trash fire turned into a grass fire at the George Burke residence, CCC Highway-E, at 1:20 p.m. Wednesday, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported.

Sheriff's Sgt. William Crooks assisted with traffic control, while the Mount Sterling Fire Department extinguished the fire with water.

There was no loss, according to the report.

It was the nickels and dimes of children that paid for the 89-foot-high pedestal for the Statue of Liberty in 1886.

Economic outlook for OECD dismal

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The OECD has issued its economic outlook for member countries through mid-1975, and its main conclusion needs little elaboration:
"Cooperation and consultation between governments have never been more necessary than they are today, given the unaccustomed and troubled ments deficits, rising labor costs.

In short, a grim outlook from this, the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, formed in 1960 to seek for its members the highest sustainable growth and employment, rising living standards and financial stability.

The brightest aspect of the outlook appeared to be for commodity prices, with the OECD forecasting a "marked improvement" by the end of the year. Even this good news was followed by a "however."

Labor costs, the forecaster stated, "will almost certainly cause increasing pressure on the price level as wage earners seek to re-establish former living standards and strive for at least some growth in real earnings."

Therefore, the statement continues, it is expected that "in most member countries wage pressure will produce a substantially higher rise in unit labor costs than in 1973."

No nation, the OECD makes clear, is immune from the ravages of inflation, the disruptions resulting from shortages, the demands of citizens for a higher standard of living. In these respects, the world is one.

WASHINGTON REPORT

From
WILLIAM H. HARSHBARGER
Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio

The day may be coming soon when the public's fears will be eased that elections are unfairly left to the highest bidder, the candidate with the most money himself or from a few wealthy and influential contributors. For a voting public sick and tired of finding out that some campaigns are run on the heinous theory that your money, not your vote, counts, this is certainly encouraging news.

In the next few weeks, the House will begin consideration of a very important campaign reform bill. The legislation, as reported by the House Administration Committee recently, would set spending ceilings on election campaigns for federal office and establish an independent commission to enforce these and other campaign reforms.

I HESITATE to outline precisely what the committee bill proposes since several of the most important sections are bound to face serious challenge and change through amendments on the floor. One of those amendments likely to surface is one which I wholeheartedly support. The House bill offers some form of public financing, but only for presidential campaigns. I think this principle should also be applied to a limited and careful extent to Senate and Congressional elections and that more emphasis should be placed on encouraging small contributions.

What my amendment offers is a system of matching payments for small contributions to Congressional campaigns for the purpose of shifting the source of funding from the special interests and large contributors to a vast base of citizen participants. It is not intended to eliminate private money altogether, however. Essentially, the proposal would entitle each candidate to a $50 federal matching payment for each equivalent contribution raised privately.

To prevent abuses of this federal matching system and a raid on the federal Treasury we could not afford,

Rain dance too effective

CARROLLTON, Ohio (AP) — "Tecumseh" the "medicine man" danced up a storm at the Buckskin Jamboree, causing the archery contest to be postponed and canceling the turkey calling event.

A headquarters booth was blown away by winds that came with the rain. Even "Tecumseh's" split-cowhide outfit got soaked.

"Tecumseh," better known as Del Sweebe, said all he wanted to do was settle the dust, but said he's decided to soft-pedal his rain dances until the jamboree ends Sunday.

several safeguards also accompany this proposal. First, matching payments from the federal Treasury will be limited to one-third of a candidate's spending ceiling and a candidate would have to raise a "threshold" amount of small contributions equal to 10 per cent of his spending ceiling to qualify for these matching payments. Both of these provisions would help prevent totally subsidized elections which the government simply would not afford and eliminate wasteful spending on frivolous candidates and publicity seekers.

A third and very important stipulation is that this matching payment money can only be spent for certain purposes. The five categories, which are readily accountable and also essential means of communication with the electorate, are: radio and television, billboards, newspaper advertising, direct mail costs and telephone banks. You can be sure that any abuses of these federal monies or any campaign funds for personal expenses or "dirty tricks" would not be dealt with lightly by the independent supervisory board which would also be created by the election reform bill. One important feature is the federal matching money would come from the fund created by the checkoff procedure on your income tax return.

THIS PROPOSAL of mine has a good deal of support in the Congress on both sides of the aisle. I believe it offers a positive and constructive approach to dealing with the problems of campaign financing. It could open the door to many qualified and deserving candidates who might have otherwise foregone political office because of the heavy expenses entailed in campaigns. It would also make the recipients of these federal campaign funds more responsible to the people they aspire to represent and not the vested money interests dumping huge sums into campaign coffers.

To be sure, this amendment alone will not bring integrity back to the political process, for there will always be those who will find some way to abuse and misuse it. On the other hand, it closes some of the loopholes and provides the electorate a means of reclaiming as their own a most vital part of the American political system.

Once the House passes its campaign financing reform legislation, the House and Senate will have to reconcile the differences expected in their versions of this legislation. In spite of these hurdles — and make no mistake, they are not small ones — many of the weaknesses in our election laws which led us into the miasma of Watergate and other scandals are coming closer and closer to extinction.

Economic policy scorns spectacles

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The new course for economic policy has been stated by President Nixon with the same force and conviction with which he announced his earlier programs.

This one will be based on patience and steadiness. Free markets will be emphasized. The spectacular will be scorned as bad economics, even if it is good publicity.

If this is so, it will represent an about-face from earlier attitudes of the administration and, in effect, is the sharpest and most direct criticism yet made of Nixonomics.

One of the most spectacular economic decisions of recent decades was the decision, an impulsive one in the eyes of even some of his advisers, to impose a price freeze in August 1971.

Following this were four phases of controls and decontrols, not in a steady sequence but marked by some impatience and unsteadiness, such as an abrupt return to a price freeze from June 13 to August 12, 1973.

Involvement of this sort, of course, is hardly synonymous with a laissez-faire, or hands off policy. The free markets that now are to guide the return to stability were suspended because they failed to do the job.

The current policy of budget and monetary restraint is, therefore, hardly a continuation of earlier approaches to the inflation battle, although there might be a few threads that weave their way continuously.

The President seemed even to concede an earlier lack of patience when he wrote The Economic Report of the President in February.

"There are at least four lessons we can learn from our past experience in combating inflation," he said, listing the first as "The importance of patience."

The other lessons named were "The importance of the rest of the world, the importance of production, the importance of free markets." In regard to the latter, he wrote:

"In the past several years, under the pressure of emergency conditions, we have made great, but temporary, departures from reliance on free prices and free markets. In special circumstances and for short periods these departures have been helpful."

But, he added, "taken together, these experiences have confirmed the view that the free market is, in general, our most efficient system of economic organization."

And so, after some partially successful and some dismally-unproductive flirtations with a controlled economy, the administration now seems ready to return to laissez-faire.

The problem for the administration now may be its ability to convince the public.

Cycle deaths prove worrisome

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The 40-year old executive who finally persuaded his wife last Christmas to let him buy a motorcycle because "we'll save on gas" may have been playing a deadly game.

In fact, by now he could be one of the 675 persons who lost their lives on motorcycles on the nation's highways through the first four months of 1974, according to National Highway Traffic Safety Administration estimates.

Although the returns are early, motorcycle deaths to date are running more than 30 per cent ahead of 1973, in sharp contrast to a 23.8 per cent decline this year in over-all traffic deaths.

Running side by side with the higher motorcycle death figures are dramatically higher cycle sales. The Motorcycle Industry Council, a Washington-based lobby group, estimates motorcycle sales have jumped about 50 per cent so far this year to roughly 700,000 to 750,000 new vehicles.

Added to the 4,222,000 motorcycles the Department of Transportation estimates were on the road at the end of 1973, the total cycle population now stands near five million, and is growing this year at a 32 per cent annual clip.

The fatality figures so far in 1974 are alarming, since in all but one of the last 10 years, the council says, there was a downtrend in the ratio of motorcycle deaths to vehicle registrations.

One explanation, according to Bob Hicks, publisher of Cycle Sport magazine, is that the energy crisis gave many nonteen-age, middle class persons with little or no cycling knowledge the excuse they'd been looking for "to get their courage up and do what they wanted to do in the first place."

Ad campaigns by some cycle makers stressing the new image of respectability and fuel economy helped to persuade the wife to go along with a motorcycle, Hicks said.

"The real reason these older guys started buying bikes this year, according to dealers I speak to, is they now had an excuse from the sad state of the economy to do what they wanted to do in the first place. It's machismo. Suddenly, they can ride to work on a cycle and get away with it."

The problem is, these people who hop on a bike without proper training are statistically the most likely to get killed, according to numerous government and university-sponsored studies. Most of them find that about 25 per cent of all motorcycle fatalities involve drivers with one month or less of experience.

Thus one unfortunate result of the energy crisis was to greatly expand the inexperienced motorcyclist population, and to raise the average driver's age.

AIRPORT NEWS

BY SANDY WOODMANSEE

I am writing this on Tuesday and right now it's a gorgeous day. Very clean and just right for flying except for a little wind.

We certainly haven't had many good flying days this past week so hopefully, this nice clear air will be around for a few days.

A Twin Navajo from Huntingburg, Ind., stopped in with business at Conchemco, Inc., at Sabina. A Cherokee from Ocean City, Md., was in for gas. John took an IFR trip to Pennsylvania on Saturday with Steve Warner and Jim Adair.

Local pilots flying this past week have been Stacy Poole, Millard French, Joe Kingery, Bob Melton, Mike Prickett, Bob Woodmansee, Tex Guerra, Dick Beechler and Mark Pittstick, Jim Morrison, Jack Patton, Bill Binzel, Walt Goolidin.

Bill Sever successfully completed his private flight test on July 30. His wife and son were Bill's first passengers. Congratulations, Bill!

See you next week.

Senior Citizens Fellowship band makes beautiful music

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — John Keating won't let anything keep him from blowing a tune with 50 other oldsters in weekly harmonica concerts, wheelchair or no.

"It's wonderful," says the 82-year-old Keating, who was confined to a wheelchair three years ago by a stroke. "There's just no way I'll miss it."

The members of the Senior Citizens Fun and Fellowship Harmonica Band, ranging in age from 65 to 85, play old favorites and even some rock 'n' roll. They have an appropriate theme song: "Enjoy Yourself, It's Later than You Think."

The band's director, Vernon Rathell, 78, says he had never before played the harmonica.

"That just proves if you can hum a song, you can play it on the harmonica," Rathell says. "I tell them if they only blow one note in three, it's worth it."

"The music may not be good by some standards but having fun is the important thing. For many of the band members, it's about their whole social life."

Josephine Bozyk, youngster of the group at age 65, gives credit to the band for dispelling her depression when her husband died.

"When I lost my husband, I almost went to pieces," she said. "But I joined the band — I'm a soloist. I love every minute of it."

The band often gives concerts at nursing homes and once performed for a junior high school.

"I'll tell you, about 15 of those kids came out in the hall after the concert to tell us how much they liked it," Rathell said. "They especially liked a rock 'n' roll song called 'Baby, Do You Miss Me' I wrote for my grandchildren."

Lima patient faces trial

VAN WERT, Ohio (AP) — County officials say Loris Longanecker, declared sane after 38 years in state mental hospital, will be prosecuted for a 1936 killing.

Probate Court Judge Eugene McNeil said Longanecker will be tried on a murder charge in the death of Mrs. Mary Jane Woodruff.

Longanecker was committed to the Lima State Hospital two days after the woman's death.

Dr. Paul Watkin, hospital supervisor, said a staff board of hospital doctors recently determined that Longanecker now is "sane enough to stand trial for murder."

Dr. Watkin said he has sent a letter to the probate court notifying them that the 67-year-old Longanecker can be picked up by sheriff's deputies and taken to jail.

"I won't say how long it's been since I sent the letter out, but it has been longer than the usual few days it should take them to answer," Watkin said.

"I guess it's because this sort of thing doesn't happen too often," he said.

Ricky Diane German, a deputy sheriff in Van Wert County, said the sheriff plans to transfer Longanecker from the hospital to the county jail next week.

"All the people involved in the case in 1936 are dead now," the deputy said. "There doesn't seem to be much evidence left."

Average DP&L bill

DP&L level billing plan offered again

Dayton Power and Light Co. customers are again being offered the opportunity to even out electric and gas bills by using the level billing plan, according to George Winkle, Washington C.H. district manager.

More than 100,000 DP&L customers now use the plan. The service was started in 1965. The customer pays the same amount, September through July, based on the average monthly usage of services. The above chart shows how the average DP&L bill varies from month to month. The bar represents what the average level billing would be each month, or in this case, approximately $30.

Winkle said that the plan was designed for the budget-minded customer who wants to avoid high payments in mid-winter due to gas heating, or in summer because of air-conditioning. It could come in handy during this period of inflation, he said.

Notices concerning level billing are being sent with the August DP&L bill, which contain the customer's monthly level billing amount. This amount may be adjusted from time to time to indicate increases or decreases in consumption or fuel adjustment charges.

Meters are read each month. At the end of the 11-month period, a credit or an extra charge is added to the August bill, if the total estimated level billing payments do not reflect actual usage.

Walter Brennan hospitalized

OXNARD, Calif. (AP) — Actor Walter Brennan is reported in fair condition after an emphysema attack.

Brennan was admitted to St. John's Hospital last Thursday in serious condition. However, doctors said on Wednesday that he had improved. He suffered the attack while celebrating his 80th birthday at his ranch 40 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

Business leaders reject charges

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Corporate management is becoming less and less willing to accept blame from shareholders and others about the depressed price of most shares in American industry.

KSU data turned over to lawyers

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Some documents from the government's investigation of the 1970 Kent State University shootings have been furnished to defense attorneys representing former Ohio national guardsmen. The documents were filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court in response to a request by attorneys representing eight former guardsmen who were indicted in the shootings.

Most of the material furnished either has been released previously or leaked from government sources.

Included were a 35-page summary of the voluminous FBI reports on the investigation, a six-page memo containing the Justice Department's preliminary conclusions and recommendations, and memos to government lawyers concerning the status of the state's investigation.

One of the documents indicates that the government considered filing a civil suit rather than pressing for criminal indictments in hopes of having the Ohio National Guard placed in a sort of receivership status with a special master appointed to make reforms.

Another suggests letting state officials handle the prosecution of persons charged with burning the university ROTC building so that Justice Department investigators would look like good guys when interviewing students and faculty members.

The defense had asked for access to records of the Scranton Commission's report and other material related to the incident from the National Archives in Washington.

Seek identity of slain man

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Covington police have asked outside agencies to help identify the bullet-riddled body of a man dumped in a gravel driveway of a paper company here early Wednesday.

Police said the man had been shot in the chest, stomach and abdomen and wore no shoes or underwear.

The victim was described as about 170 pounds, 40-45 years old and balding. His right leg was shorter than the left indicating he might have walked with a limp, police said.

Paper drive set in Jeff

JEFFERSONVILLE — The people of this community will have the opportunity again Saturday to get rid of the old papers and magazines in their homes for a good cause. They can take the paper to the Scout hall on Main St. between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. and Boy Scout Troop 67 will sell it to raise a little money for the fund which is used to buy needed equipment and support various troop activities.

The paper collection is a regular monthly (last Saturday) event. Fred Doyle is the scoutmaster.

The latest to speak out was the chairman of Sperry Rand Corp., J. Paul Lyet, who blamed the declining price of his stock on economic mis-handling by the federal government.

Earlier critics have blamed what they consider unfairly high capital gains taxes that discourage trading, investment advisers who concentrate on only a handful of stocks and ignore the rest, and the big investment institutions.

Lyet told shareholders at the annual meeting this week that the depression in securities prices is merely the extension of an economic malaise resulting from governmental acts of omission or commission.

Moreover, he suggested that powerful as they are financially, corporations lack political clout in Washington because of their inability to deliver votes.

In recent annual meetings, most of which are now concluded, corporate officers bore the brunt of shareholder criticism of share prices, the majority of which are at or just above book value.

While many of them could show solid profits, improving growth prospects and other indications of progress, they had to concede their inability to promote the image and aura that encourages investors.

To a great extent the problem appears to lie in high interest rates, which not only draw money away from equities and into debt securities, such as bonds, but which add greatly to the cost of doing business.

Some businessmen also detect a sense of fear or a lack of interest on the part of investors in making long-range plans, an attitude they tend to associate with a Watergate-induced malaise.

PREPS FOR OSU — Bobby L. Walters, right, a spring graduate of Washington Senior High School, was among more than 1,000 students going through orientation, testing and scheduling last week on the Ohio State University campus, Columbus. The group is expected to be among some 7,500 freshmen enrolling in OSU this autumn. Walters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Walters, 915 Millwood Ave., is shown talking with John Mount, OSU vice president. Walters hopes to major in engineering. He is entering OSU as a National Merit Commended Scholar.

Gasoline prices hit

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The energy crisis is not over as far as the Ohio Turnpike is concerned, turnpike commission Chairman James W. Shocknessy said Wednesday.

"The outrageously high price of gasoline continues to influence the use of the Ohio Turnpike, and all interchanges show decreased activity from last year insofar as passenger car traffic is concerned," Shocknessy said.

July turnpike revenues dropped 3.4 per cent compared to the same month last year, Shocknessy reported. Revenue was estimated at $4,850,000.

Turnpike income for the six months ended June 30 was $45,012,215.

"The loss in passenger car traffic tolls continues to be offset by increased tolls from commercial vehicles," the chairman said.

Traffic fatalities were reported as five during the first half of 1974 compared to 14 during the same period of 1973, Shocknessy said.

Ohio ranks lowest in terms of tax burden placed on industry and per capita taxes paid by individuals compared with 31 major industrial states, according to an independent study conducted for the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development.

By The Associated Press

Rain brought cooler temperatures to the middle Missouri Valley today as clouds hid much of the nation.

Nearly an inch of rain fell on Sioux City, Iowa, while Grand Island, Neb., was washed by half an inch. Temperatures dropped into the 50s and 60s.

Tornadoes were sighted late Wednesday near Sublette, Kan., and Alice, Tex. Three inches of rain drenched Shaw Air Force Base, S.C.

Isolated thundershowers dumped rain throughout the Plateau region. One buffeted portions of Phoenix, Ariz., with winds up to 50 miles per hour and dumped over an inch of rain.

Near the Pacific Coast, low clouds and fog again hung over coastal valleys.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 49 at Redig, S.D., to 99 at Needles, Calif.

Gullett hurls 13th victory for Reds

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati hurler Don Gullett, 13-7, tossed a 4-0 two-hit shutout to the Houston Astros Wednesday night in what Reds Manager George "Sparky" Anderson called "a must game."

"I was really concerned about this game," said Anderson afterward as the Reds trailed National League western division leading Los Angeles by 5½ games.

"I just felt all night that the Dodgers were going to win again."

The Reds departed after the game for a crucial seven-game series on the West Coast, three of them with the Dodgers. The Reds play the Giants in San Francisco tonight and Friday night.

"We have to keep it within 4½ to 5½ games when we get to L.A. in order to have a good shot at them head to head," Anderson said.

It was Gullett's fourth shutout of the season. He has the only victory this season for Cincinnati over the Dodgers, a shutout July 2.

"I had a great fastball and hard slider," said Gullett of Wednesday night's game.

The Astros two hits were both made by Roger Metzger, a single "off a bad fork ball" in the fourth, and another to open the seventh inning. Cesar Cedeño followed with his second walk of the game and pitching Coach Larry Sheppard headed to the mound.

"He told me I had no pop on the ball. He said to kick out with my leg and throw like I can," said Gullett, who then got out of the inning.

Only five Astros reached base on Gullett, the fifth on an error.

"I had as good stuff as I've had all year," said Gullett.

The Reds tagged loser Tom Griffin, 11-4, for two runs in the second inning on three straight singles by Johnny Bench, Tony Perez, and Danny Driessen who collected the runs batted in.

ON TO THE STATE — Colonial Stair softball team will be playing in the state tournament being held in Beaver Creek, August 16-18. Team members include batboys Eric Woodrow and Andy Merriman in front. Kneeling (left to right) are Sid Woodrow, Tony Grooms, Jow Horsley, Randy Merriman, Gene Fout, Flea Merriman, Steve Dawson and Jack Merriman. Standing are Keith Guthrie, Dennis Holloway, Mike Henry, Steve Sword, Paul Pettit, Ron Sword, Rick Bell and Jim Kramer.

Colonial Stair advances to state tournament

By placing second in the recent district tournament in Cedarville, Colonial Stair's softball team will be participating in the state tournament to be held in Beaver Creek, August 16-18.

Compiling an impressive 67-19 record, Colonial Stair has become regarded as one of the top teams in the state this season.

The Fayette Countians have participated in 14 tournaments this season. The Fayette County champs have brought home six first places, one second and a third.

In the district tournament, Colonial Stair lost its first game of the double-elimination event and had to fight for its life during the remainder of the tournament. The local squad managed to win eight straight contests before taking a 10-1 beating from Coach Lite in the finals.

Colonial Stair is managed by Gene Fout. Team members and their batting averages are: Sid Woodrow (.548), Flea Merriman (.526), Keith Guthrie (.523), Steve Sword (.488), Dennis Holloway (.487), Mike Henry (.482), Steve Dawson (.480) Randy Merriman (.465), Jim Kramer (.454), Tony Grooms (.439), Joe Horsley (.434), Rick Bell (.372), Jack Merriman (.476), Ron Sword (.474), and Paul Pettit (.250).

Headway reported in NFL negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations toward ending the 32-day-old National Football League player strike made their first real headway Wednesday, as chief federal mediator W.J. Usery supervised nearly 14 hours of discussions.

The talks, which began at 10 a.m., EDT, and paused only for a two-hour lunch break, were recessed at 1:50 a.m., EDT, today.

"There comes a point when it's best to break it off, and I thought it was the best time now," a tired Usery said.

The groups were to return to the bargaining table at 2 p.m., EDT, this afternoon.

Usery would not elaborate on progress made in the session, during which he had met separately with representatives of the NFL Players Association and NFL Management Council. The groups held face-to-face discussions for only one hour and 45 minutes.

Jeff Stars take 3-2 win

Aided by two sterling innings of relief pitching by Ben Allen, Jeffersonville All-Stars held on to nip the combined all-star team from Good Hope and New Holland 3-2.

Allen came in to pitch the fifth and sixth innings of the game. He held the opponents hitless, while striking out three and not yielding a walk.

Jeff King started for the winners. He gave up both runs and four hits, while striking out three in four innings.

Jim Perrill and Scott Grooms combined the pitching chores for the losers. Perrill, who was the loser, struck out seven and walked one. Grooms held Jeffersonville hitless, while striking out four and walking one.

Lane Garringer homered for the Jeff All-Stars and Grooms hits a circuit for the losers.

Softball tournament

Billie Wilson Chevrolet women's softball team is sponsoring its 2nd Annual Monte Carlo Tournament this Saturday and Sunday at Eymann Park. Harveysburg and Dorn, Lewis Insurance open the tournament at noon, Saturday. At 1 p.m., Outlawettes play American Trophy, while Red Dot Trophies take on Bees at 2 p.m. Wilson's drew a bye and will be playing the winner of the third game at 6 p.m.

the third beginning with a double by Cesar Geronimo.

Geronimo went to third on Pete Rose's fielders choice grounder. He scored when trapped off third on a grounder as Griffin dropped the ball trying to tag him. Tony Perez hit a sacrifice fly scoring Joe Morgan. Both runs were unearned.

Al Hrabosky is proving that patience is indeed a virtue.

The patience, in this case, belonged to St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst, who stuck with Hrabosky even though the 25-year-old left-hander got off to a horrid start this season.

The latest dividend on Schoendienst's confidence came Wednesday night, when Hrabosky put the clamps on a Philadelphia comeback and saved a 9-8 victory for the Cards, lifting St. Louis into a first-place tie with Philadelphia in the National League East.

Hrabosky's earned run average ballooned as high as 10.43 earlier this year.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Atlanta Braves routed the San Francisco Giants 9-0, the Montreal Expos swept a doubleheader from the Chicago Cubs 7-4 and 4-0, the Pitt-

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — The North will carry a 3½-point favorite's role into the statewide-televised 29th annual Ohio North-South High School All-Star Football Game Friday night.

Unlike past years when one side boasted a decided weight edge and an advantage in speed, the 1974 all-stars are about as evenly matched as possible.

The Yankees, seeking a fourth successive win, will start an offensive line which averages 6-foot-1 and 232 pounds a player, offensive running backs whose mean is 6-foot and 195 or 6-1 and 192.5, depending upon who is the opening tailback; a defensive front five at 6-3 and 226, and four linebackers at 6-0, 201.

The South's only edge is in its linebackers. They average 6-2 and 218. The Rebels' offensive forward wall goes 6-3, 216 per starter. The South running backs average 6-0, 192 and its defensive front four 6-3, 229.

Because of the balance, the contest could boil down to the right foot of Youngstown Boardman's Christopher Dennis, a soccer-style booter for the North, and the right foot of Ironton's Rick Massey.

Both Dennis, the first kicking

"We have been talking on all the issues—we've been talking long and hard," said Usery. "The logic is that now that we've got them talking, there's a chance to consummate an agreement."

"We had suggestions back and forth. When you go back and forth, you don't know where you stand."

But apparent progress had been made. Usery later told newsmen that "substantive issues had been discussed."

The statement apparently referred to the "freedom issues" which created the bargaining stalemate and led to the player strike that started July 1.

Today's talks marked the third consecutive day of negotiations, which were resumed after nine days of silence. Sources predicted today's session might go around the clock in an effort to reach an agreement.

Neither group would comment on Wednesday's meetings.

It was understood that the NFLPA had not presented a counterproposal to the freedom demands, a condition considered necessary for serious bargaining. A source close to the strike talks said Usery's goal was to persuade each side to consider proposals that would neither be totally accepted nor rejected outright.

Red increases golf margin

Defeating Maxfli 14-6, Red increased its lead over the remainder of the field in the Wednesday Night Golf League at the Washington Country Club.

In other play, Blue Max dropped the Tourneys 11½-8½ and Titleist stopped Top Flitters by the same score. With its victory, Blue Max took over second place from the Tourneys and the Titleists jumped from sixth place to fourth.

Ernie Stanforth carded a 42 to take low individual honors for the evening. With 226 strokes, Blue Max had low team honors.

REDS — Dan Huffman 45, 2½; Richard Kimmet 48, 1½; Carl Elbertfeld 45, 3; Jim Wilson 45, 3; Ray Jennings 47, 4; TOTAL 14.

Bulletproof vests become popular

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A year ago, motorcycle officer Edwin Goulart was returning home from the funeral of a fellow officer who had been gunned down on patrol.

On an impulse, Goulart stopped and bought a bulletproof vest. He found out later that more than a dozen other officers had done the same thing.

"None of us wanted that — the funeral and all — to happen to us," said Goulart. 25

Because he bought the vest and wore it, it didn't happen.

Last month a motorist shot him with a .32-caliber pistol as he was writing out a ticket. Goulart suffered only a chest bruise.

Two weeks after Goulart was shot, San Francisco policeman Robert Hooper was only slightly injured when a motorist fired a bullet at his heart. He was wearing a vest like Goulart's—costing about $50, weighing less than four pounds and undetectable under his uniform.

Impressed by the Goulart incident, the Los Angeles City Council ordered that bulletproof vests become standard equipment for the city's 7,000 policemen. The expected cost is $350,000 — less than the city would have paid in pension costs to Goulart's family had he been killed.

The Los Angeles Sheriff's Department and police departments in San Francisco, New York and Detroit are considering buying vests.

Tests are being conducted to determine what kind of vest Los Angeles will buy. The rigors of police work—including running, diving under a car, jumping off a motorcycle or reaching for a gun—are being considered, along with how hot it makes the wearer.

Bullet-proof vests were considered by Los Angeles police in 1949 and 1957. They were rejected because they were too heavy and hot. Modern bulletproof wear is sleek and light. Metal has been replaced by fiber glass and boron carbide which are less cumbersome and more bullet resistant. A lightweight fabric called Kevlar, now used instead of steel in some radial tires, is used in some vests.

Flak vests, used by soldiers to protect against shrapnel, are now carried by Los Angeles police in their cars. But as one detective said, "Just about every time we've been involved in a wild shootout there's been no time to suit up."

A 10-year-veteran of the San Francisco force, Hooper said, "They're a little like seat belts. For a while they were a pain." Hooper said getting shot while wearing the vest was "like getting hit with a baseball bat."

Auto firms say inflation big problem

DETROIT (AP) — The nation's Big Three auto makers blame rapid inflation for trimming profits by $1.8 billion during the first half of 1974.

For the consumer, the problems of the mammoth firms will translate into price increases on new models in September.

Banks must bare data

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's largest banks have been ordered by the government to begin making annual public reports of the stock transactions and holdings of their trust departments.

Comptroller of the Currency James E. Smith estimated Wednesday the rule will apply to 90 per cent of the bank trust department holdings in the nation.

Trust departments, whose activities are usually shielded from public view, can exert strong leverage over the stock market and corporate policies through the stocks they hold for pension funds and other trusts. Institutional investors, such as bank trust departments, increased their share of dollar volume on the New York Stock Exchange over the last decade from 39 per cent to 68 per cent.

The new rule, applying to banks holding common or preferred stock valued at more than $75 million, will require annual reports of trust department stock holdings beginning December 31. At the same time, the trust departments would have to start reporting every three months on stock trades involving more than 10,000 shares or $500,000. Smith warned his agency will watch carefully to make sure that banks don't try to get around the rule by splitting big trades into smaller units.

Symposiarchs hold programless meet

In line with the policy of no programs at the summer meetings, Symposiarchs gathered at Eli Craig's cottage at Cedarhurst for a fried chicken and corn-on-the-cob picnic supper. William Westerfield, of Houston, and Pete Whiting, J.C. Penney Store manager, were guests.

Hosts for the supper were Craig, Louis Baer and Dr. Samuel D. Sauer.

MAT JV — HE LOVED TO EAT — James Hamman, 24, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, poses with the pants he wore when he weighed in at 396 pounds. Hamman underwent a gastric bypass operation in March, 1973 and today he can fit his 196 pounds into one leg of the pants. He hopes to stabilize his weight at 186 pounds.

Crimefight head named

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's choice for chief of a billion-dollar crime-fighting agency is a Republican bureaucrat twice passed over for the job.

Deputy White House press secretary Gerald L. Warren announced Wednesday that Nixon intends to nominate Richard W. Velde as administrator of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration which dispenses almost $1 billion a year in federal anticrime funds.

Velde was chosen to replace Donald E. Santarelli who resigned June 1 after publicly criticizing Nixon because of the Watergate scandal.

The nomination is subject to Senate approval, and Santarelli expects to remain on the job until a successor is confirmed.

Velde, 42, joined LEAA as an associate administrator at the beginning of Nixon's first term in 1969. He remained in that job until last year when he was promoted to become one of the two deputy administrators.

Justice Department sources said Velde was under consideration for nomination to the top job in 1969 and in 1973. He was passed over in favor of Jerris Leonard the first time and Santarelli the second.

Santarelli said Velde may direct more LEAA attention and money into prison reform.

"I know that his interest is intensely devoted to correctional reform, and mine was devoted to court reform and citizen participation" in the court system, Santarelli continued.

But he said he expects Velde to consider court reform projects already in the works.

An attorney, Velde was in private practice in Washington during the early 1960s. In 1965, he was hired as counsel to minority Republicans on the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on criminal law. He continued there until his LEAA appointment.

They'll Do It Every Time

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Intolerable Eye Itching

Sometimes my eyes begin to itch intolerably when I go to visit my mother in the country. A friend who has a similar problem told me that hers was caused by a "trich." No one seems to know what this is, not even she. Can you help me?

Miss L.E., Penna.

Dear Miss E.: Your symptom of intolerable itching is a common one, and is often associated with marked tearing of the eyes, and even pain when there is excessive light.

This appears to be a severe allergic reaction. The symptoms are more prevalent in the spring and summer. Smears taken from the secretion in the eyes may show certain cells which are characteristic of an allergy. The exact substance that you are allergic to must, of course, be determined by special tests for sensitivity.

Treatment with antihistamine drugs and cortisone are beneficial.

Now, about "trich." This is a strange organism that resembles both bacteria and viruses. It is rarely seen in America. It is related to the contagious disease of "trachoma." You can be sure that this is not your problem. People who suffer from vernal (spring) conjunctivitis can often learn the substance that they are highly sensitive to and thus avoid many of the unpleasant symptoms.

Is there any value to massage as a way of losing weight?

Mrs. D.P.B., N.H.

Dear Mrs. B.: It is a misconception to believe that excess poundage can be "rubbed off." Pockets of fat may be redistributed, but cannot be "lost" with active or passive massage.

There are, however, other advantages to good, sensible massage. It tones the muscles, and gives one a sense of well-being and invigoration.

One must not delude one's self into believing that massage is a way of avoiding calorie counting.

The single accepted law of weight reduction is based on reducing the calorie intake. When the calories we eat are greater than the calories we require for our daily activities it is inevitable that a weight gain will follow.

The island of Newfoundland is separated from the mainland by the Strait of Belle Isle, about nine miles wide at the narrowest point.

Woman fights to retain gas station

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Janet Markusic, a two-month widow, said she'll take the Union Oil Co. to court if the company takes away the service station her husband had operated.

"They sent me a letter telling me that according to their policy the lease ended the day my husband died," the mother of five said.

She said a Union Oil representative told her they turned down her lease application because they believed she should remain home with her children.

"This is the only job I know to support my family," the 41-year-old widow said. Her children range in age from 8 to 15.

"We're really not trying to snatch food out of the mouths of a widow and her five children," a company representative said.

He said the company chose one of the other five applicants for the lease "because we felt he would be the most suitable person to run the business."

E. Bruce Hadden, Mrs. Markusic's attorney, said the company has agreed to let Mrs. Markusic keep the station until Aug. 6, when the two sides have agreed to meet.

"If no agreement is reached then, we'll request a court hearing on a temporary restraining order we already have filed," Hadden said.

He said he will argue that Mrs. Markusic had an oral agreement with the company, that sex discrimination is involved, and that several state statutes will be violated if her lease is terminated.

Earlier this week friends and supporters of Mrs. Markusic picketed the Union Oil Co.'s regional headquarters here.

She said she doesn't know if the demonstration did her cause any good, but "it can't do me any harm."

Land conquered with ski poles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lost Sierra is an isolated corner of northeastern California that the '49ers penetrated for gold. In the beginning, most of them abandoned their diggings with the first heavy snowfall and retreated to the protection of the lowlands and valleys.

The Scandinavians jumping ship in San Francisco to join the gold rush taught them to make skis, and miners conquered a region that was snowbound for seven months of the year, with drifts as high as 40 feet.

Richard Lee Butcher, 38, of 740 E. Market St., maintenance man, to Kathryn L. Faulkner, 24, Reesville, at home.

JUVENILE COURT

A 15-year-old Fayette County boy has been instructed not to ride his or any other motorcycle or mini-bike until reaching 16 years of age and placed on probation under probation officer Marshall Boggs. The ruling, coming from Juvenile Court Judge Rollo M. Marchant, stemmed from Steven D. Clay operating his motorcycle on Staunton-Sugar Grove Road, near the CCC Highway-W intersection on July 15, without an operator's license or motorcycle endorsement. He was arrested by sheriff's deputies.

A 17-year-old Washington C.H. youth was fined $10 plus court costs for running a red light on June 21, following a hearing in Juvenile Court. Kevin P. Blair, 14 Colonial Court, was fined by Judge Marchant, in juvenile court. He had been arrested by city police.

A 16-year-old Fayette County youth has had his driver's license suspended for 30 days for failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead by Judge Marchant. Jackie D. Creed, Miami Trace Road, was arrested by the Ohio Highway Patrol on July 20.

Two 16-year-old Fairborn youths have had their cases transferred by Judge Marchant to Greene County Juvenile Court for disposition. The boys are charged with stealing copper wire from telegraph poles on Edgfield Road on July 8, by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department.

A 16-year-old Fayette County girl has been committed to the Ohio Youth Commission by Judge Marchant.

Marsha Rae Rinehart, will be sent to the Ohio Youth Commission in Columbus for running away from home and refusing to obey her parents. Judge Marchant ruled on the case July 23.

A 15-year-old Washington C.H. boy, who was charged by the Ohio Highway Patrol for operating a motorcycle without an operator's license on July 11, has been instructed not to ride a motorcycle or mini-bike until the age of 16 and placed on probation with Boggs.

Douglas K. Stewart, 538 Harrison St., received the disposition from Judge

Marchant following a hearing in juvenile court.

A 17-year-old Fayette County youth, charged with speeding by the Ohio Highway Patrol, had his license suspended for 30 days by Judge Marchant.

Jefferson W. Sagar, U.S. 35, was charged with speeding June 24.

DIVORCE SUIT FILED

In Sun Washburn, 896 Davis Court, has filed suit in Common Pleas Court for divorce from James W. Washburn, on grounds of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty. The couple was married Aug. 26, 1968 at the American embassy in Seoul, Korea and have no children. The plaintiff is seeking the defendant's vacation of the residence and a restraining order, according to the petition.

Bobby D. Elzey, 3277 Ford Rd., has filed suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court from Virginia Elzey, Columbus, on grounds of gross neglect of duty. The couple was married June 18, 1971, in Highland County and have no children, according to the petition.

David A. Frye, 214 N. Main St., has filed suit in Common Pleas Court for divorce from Rebecca M. Frye, Bainbridge, on grounds of gross neglect of duty. The couple was married in Farmer City, Ill., June 17, 1973, and have no children, according to the petition.

Delores A. Barker, Jeffersonville, has filed suit in Common Pleas Court for divorce from Virgil L. Barker, on grounds of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty. The couple was married in Jeffersonville on June 26, 1962 and have two children, according to the petition. The plaintiff is seeking custody and alimony.

CIVIL SUIT FILED

Josephine B. Gregory, 1226 E. Paint St., has filed suit in Common Pleas Court against Mary J. (Gregory) Harper, 415 Bloomingburg-New Holland Road and the First Federal Savings and Loan Association. The plaintiff is seeking $19,492.92 plus interest from either of the two defendants. The plaintiff claims the money sought was in an account at First Federal Savings and Loan Association and belonged to the plaintiff's late husband. The plaintiff was named sole heir to the deceased's account in the deceased's will and the defendant, Mary Harper, is accused by the plaintiff of allegedly withdrawing the money illegally from the deceased's account. The money and interest in question is to be restored to the deceased's account.

Steel strike never threat

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Someday, this day may be remembered for the steel strike that never was.

Midnight of Aug. 1 has been the traditional deadline for a contract agreement between the nation's 10 largest steel firms and their employees represented by the United Steelworkers of America (USW).

Even when a last-minute settlement could be reached, as happened far more often than not over the past 25 years, the prior threat of a shutdown could have far-reaching effects on the economy, the industry and the steelworkers.

This year, the atmosphere is calm because the new contract is already in effect, agreed to months ago under terms of what the union and industry call the Experimental Negotiating Agreement (ENA).

Signed in May, 1973, the ENA provided a guarantee against a nationwide strike or lockout by requiring all unsettled issues in a national contract be submitted to binding arbitration in advance of the deadline.

As things worked out, a new contract as signed last May 3 without the need for arbitration.

Woman given life in murder conviction

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Wanda Alberta Beamon, 28, of suburban Kennedy Heights, was sentenced to life imprisonment Wednesday following her conviction on a charge of aggravated murder.

She was accused in the May 3 fatal shooting of James Walker, 68, of Cincinnati during an attempted holdup on the street, the prosecution said.

Order girls to apologize in flag case

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (AP) — Two teenage girls have been ordered by a juvenile court judge to run advertisements in a newspaper reading: "we publicly apologize and declare that we love our country."

The ad is only part of the penalty Judge Guy Mauro imposed on the 15 and 16-year-old East Liverpool girls who burned a small American flag earlier this month on a city street.

Judge Mauro said he ordered the apology "to impress upon the girls and minors generally that the American flag is something to be respected and not spit upon."

He also ordered the girls to attend the raising and lowering of the city hall flag each day until school starts.

The girls must observe a curfew for the next six months and have been forbidden to contact each other by phone, letter or in person for the next year, the judge added.

Mauro said the girls apparently got the flag from a local bank that was passing them out just before the Fourth of July to celebrate the bank's 100th anniversary.

He said the girls claimed they burned the flag because it had dropped on the ground.
